SURVIVORS ON CARPATHIA MAY NOT KNOW FULL EXTENT OF HORROR

SINKING OF GIANT STEAMSHIP TITANIC, DRAWN BY G. A. COFFIN, NOTED MARINE ARTIST, FROM WIRELESS DISPATCHES

CLING TO HOPE THAT MISSING ONES LIVE

Messages Indicate That Rescued Aboard Incoming Steamer Are Unaware of Tragedy's Frightful Total.

PERSISTENT RUMOR THAT MORE ARE LOST

New York, April 18.—The Cunard liner Carpathia, bearing the survivors of the sunken steamship Titanic, was making her way slowly toward New York this afternoon groping through the fog, her wireless as silent as that of the stricken vessel, a small part of whose human cargo she carries. According to best reckoning she will reach her dock not before 1 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Wireless messages bombarded the Carpathia all last night and this morning, but with little results. Even a message from President Taft asking for information regarding his aide, Major Butt, remained unanswered and the indications are that no details of the disaster will be known until the Carpathia reaches port.

May Not Know the Worst.

Judging from the nature of the few messages received from the survivors aboard the Carpathia the inference is that most of them are unaware of the awful tragedy that took place aboard the Titanic after she was abandoned. Thus many wives are ignorant that their husbands have perished and they are hoping they were picked up by some passing liner which subsequently rendered service similar to that of the Carpathia.

In New York all preparations have been made to receive the survivors when they land. Food, clothing, ambulances and other necessities and luxuries have been provided; the police protection will be ample and every measure will be taken to protect the unfortunates who have been under such a terrific strain. For the women of steerage a committee of prominent New York women has been formed to receive and take care of them until relatives abroad can be notified of their plight.

BUT THIRTEEN LIFEBOATS?

Persistent Rumor Indicates Fewer Total of Survivors.

New York, April 18.—The Cunarder Carpathia, with 868 of the shipwrecked survivors of the sunken Titanic, is due at her dock at 11 o'clock tonight. The rescue ship was off Nantucket lightship, 196 miles away, at 5:55 o'clock this morning. The wireless report that there are only 705 survivors of the Titanic aboard the Carpathia still persists, but no word as far as can be learned has come from the Carpathia within the last twenty-four hours giving the exact number of shipwrecked persons aboard. From figures available at the White Star line offices it is probable that the number of those perished totals 1,312 souls.

The Carpathia is now said to be in a

STRICKEN WIDOW OF CAPT. SMITH SHARES THE GRIEF OF OTHERS.

London, April 18.—The widow of Captain Smith, the commander of the Titanic, has written a pathetic message which was posted outside the White Star offices. It reads as follows: "To my poor fellow sufferers. My heart overflows with grief for you all and is laden with sorrow that you are weighted down with this terrible burden that has been thrust upon us. May God be with us and comfort us all.

"Your in deep sympathy,
"ELEANOR SMITH."

ADDS 250,000 TO LIST OF HOMELESS

New Break in River Levees Sends the Flood Over Area as Large as New England States.

Memphis, Tenn., April 18.—The break in the main line levee on the Mississippi river yesterday four miles below Rosedale, Miss., and another on the Arkansas river, added 250,000 persons to the list of flood sufferers in southern Arkansas, northeastern Louisiana and northwestern Mississippi, the yellow flood inundating an area of rich cotton country almost as large as the New England states.

The plight of thousands of homeless people is pitiable. Hundreds are marooned in isolated places. Many have been without food for days and scores are suffering from want of clothing.

Officials of the national government have combined forces with state officials to carry relief to as many as possible. The need of motor boats and skiffs to be used in rescuing persons in trees and from house tops is extreme and all available craft has been bought or chartered by the officials.

The water is rising rapidly at Tallalulah, La. Rescue officials are trying to carry the inhabitants to Milliken's Bend, where a temporary refugee camp will be established immediately. This camp is to be protected by the national government.

Urgent appeals from more than 8,000 persons have been received at Vicksburg, where a large camp will be established immediately under the protection of the Mississippi National Guard. Railroads are all out of commission in the inundated sections and whatever supplies are collected can be distributed only by boats.

Flashes from Titanic Disaster as Told in the Day's Bulletins

London, April 18.—The actual number of the passengers and crew on board the Titanic at the time of the disaster was 2,208, according to Sidney Buxton president of the board of trade, in reply to a question in the house of commons this afternoon.

Montreal, April 18.—The Grand Trunk railway company this morning received the following telegram:

"Mrs. Hays, Mrs. Davidson saved. No news of husband.

(Signed) "HAYS."

This message came from Woods Hole, Mass. This confirms information thus far received to the effect that the president of the Grand Trunk railway is not among the survivors.

New York, April 18.—Wireless dispatch received at the White Star line gives the information that George D. Widener, of Philadelphia, is not among the survivors of the Titanic aboard the Carpathia.

Philadelphia, April 18.—Grave doubt exists here regarding the safety of John B. Thayer, second vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, who with his wife and 14-year-old son were on the Titanic.

A wireless message was received here today signed by Mrs. Thayer reading: "Jack, Margaret and I safe. No news of Mr. Thayer."

Margaret is Mrs. Thayer's maid and Jack is the son.

The message came from the Carpathia via Halifax and is said to have been one of 300 received there.

It is possible that the message was filed before all the boats of the Titanic had been picked up. Mr. Thayer's name is in the list of survivors.

New York, April 18.—General Henry, surveyor of the port of New York, said this morning that the Carpathia would not dock until one o'clock Friday morning.

General Henry made this statement to a large crowd of anxious people who had gathered at the customs house seeking information as to when the liner would dock. He explained that the fog down the bay and off the coast had compelled the Carpathia to reduce her speed from 13 to nine knots an hour.

BEGIN AN ATTACK ON TURKISH FORTS

Italian Fleet Opens Fire at Entrance to the Dardanelles.

ONE REPORTED SUNK

London, April 18.—Cannon firing was heard at the entrance to the Dardanelles at noon today, according to a dispatch received here from Lloyds' signal station in the Dardanelles.

It is believed that the Italian fleet has begun an attack on the forts of the straits, but no details have yet come to hand.

It has been rumored for some weeks that Italy contemplated a renewal of naval action in Turkish waters and the Italian fleet was said to have approached within fifty miles of the Dardanelles a month ago with the intention of occupying some of the islands. In consequence of these reports the Turkish military authorities reinforced the garrisons in the vicinity of the Dardanelles straits and the Turkish government notified the foreign powers that the Dardanelles had been mined and that it was necessary for vessels passing through to employ local pilots.

ONE REPORTED SUNK.

Constantinople, April 18.—The Italian fleet is reported to have appeared at the entrance to the Dardanelles straits. One Italian warship is said to have been sunk.

PASSED SKYRO ISLAND.

Athens, Greece, April 18.—Two divisions of Italian warships, each comprising a dozen ships, passed Skyro island in the Aegian sea yesterday sailing to the north.

TO INCREASE MEMBERSHIP.

Commercial Club Committee Will Meet Tonight.

The membership committee of the Fort Wayne Commercial club will meet this evening for the purpose of outlining some plan for increasing the membership of the organization. It is agreed by all that the local club is one of the most active and best supported in the state, but the officers desire to forge ahead of the regular routine and work for a still stronger club. The recent addition of the association of commerce to the list of committees, has been one step forward and a great benefit is expected to come from this branch, which has at heart the interest of manufacturers and shippers of the Twelfth district.

CARPATHIA REFUSES TO BREAK SILENCE

EVEN PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE IGNORED

Washington, April 18.—Officials of the navy department are suspending judgment upon the conduct of officers of the Carpathia who have treated with scant courtesy requests for information transmitted through the scout cruisers Salem and Chester by government officials, including the president of the United States.

Whether responsibility rests with the captain of the Cunarder or President Ismay, of the White Star line, who is reported as a survivor of the Titanic, aboard the Carpathia, is a matter of conjecture. Naval officials indignantly reject the insinuation by the Cunard people that the naval wireless operators are incapable of handling messages with due celerity.

Refuses to Answer.

The navy department this morning gave out a dispatch sent by the United States steamship Salem at 8 a. m. corroborating the numerous dispatches declaring that the Carpathia has persistently declined to answer any message of inquiry, although some times acknowledging calls. The message made remarkable time, having been received in Washington ten minutes after its dispatch from the Salem. It follows:

"U. S. S. Salem, 8 a. m.—Can get no information from Carpathia of any kind. Although she is within easy radio-communication, she sometimes acknowledges calls but will not admit receipt of messages or make reply. Cannot believe

CLINE INTRODUCES BILL TO PROVIDE LIFEBOATS FOR ALL.

Washington, April 18.—Representative Cyrus Cline, of the Twelfth Indiana district, introduced a bill in congress yesterday making it a felony punishable by fine and imprisonment for any master or captain of a steamer to leave port of the United States without sufficient life boats to accommodate all passengers and crew.

It makes the same fine and penalty apply to any officer issuing a clearance certificate without certifying that the steamer is so equipped. The bill will be pushed as rapidly as the rules permit.

WILLENAR AND LITMAN NAMED

By Republicans as Possible Delegates to Chicago Convention.

BOTH FAVOR "TEDDY"

In all probability the republicans of the Twelith district, in convention at Auburn next Tuesday, will name Louis N. Litman, of Lagrange, and W. H. Willenar, of Auburn, as delegates to the national convention at Chicago in June. Mr. Litman returned to Fort Wayned Wednesday night after a brief visit at Auburn, and this morning declared that he could not state who would be candidates for the delegateship, but he denied early rumors that Lagrange county is engaged in controversy for its share of the national convention honors. Friends of the two above named Roosevelt supporters agree that they will represent this district at Chicago and will vote for the ex-president's nomination.

All is in readiness for the Allen county primaries tomorrow at which thirty-one delegates will be elected to attend the Auburn convention. Since announcement was made by the Taft people that they will offer no opposition to the selection of Roosevelt republicans, local adherents of the Oyster Bay colonel are confident that none but men in sympathy with "Teddy" will be selected by the people. A slate of delegates has been named for the pleasure of the voters of the county and Mr. Litman this morning stated that he believes a big vote will be cast.

In view of the primaries tomorrow and the strength which is expected to be accorded Roosevelt, supporters of the ex-president will enjoy a love feast and smoker this evening at the Roosevelt headquarters. Plans will be arranged for future work throughout the district. It is announced that the Roosevelt organization will be maintained for some time after the convention next week.

"We are very appreciative of the action of the Taft people in withdrawing from the county fight," said Mr. Litman. "They agree that the district and county is strong for Roosevelt. The republican party always fights until after the convention, and then it is a steady pull together for whoever is nominated."

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY

SHIPPERS STOP ADVANCED RATE

Commission Orders Suspension of Rates on Drain Tile.

TRADE IS INTERESTED

Clifford S. Lee, field secretary of the Indiana Manufacturers' and Shippers' association, and J. P. Stahr, secretary of the St. Joe Valley Traffic association of South Bend, who have been working in Fort Wayne in the interests of the log rate fight to secure lower rates through Indiana, have received word of the suspension, through the Indiana railroad commission, of the proposed new scale of rates on drain tile, carrying an advance of 16 per cent which will become effective May 1. The railroad commission of Indiana has ordered the rate held up for thirty days, pending a more thorough investigation.

Mr. Stahr, who has been working with Mr. Lee among the local log shippers and receivers, says he believes that the commission will not permit any advance in log rates.

"In 1907 the railroad commission put through a schedule of rates on logs which made a reduction of from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent under the then existing log rates," said Mr. Stahr. "The order was effective for two years and at the expiration of that order the railroads put back into force the sixth class rate on logs, which was very discriminating to the shippers and receivers. Under an act which was passed by the last legislature at the instance of the Indiana Manufacturers' and Shippers' association, the railroad commission again opened this matter and up to the present there have been held two hearings on log rates before Judge Wood at Indianapolis.

"The railroads are agreeable to putting in the old schedule of 1907, but insist upon raising the minimum carload from 34,000 to 40,000 pounds. This proposed advance in the minimum rate practically knocks out the reduction in the rate itself. The fight now wages upon the minimum car-load weight, and from all indications the railroads will not be allowed to put in this arbitrary order, which means the raising of the minimum rate."

Six New Members.

The local membership in the Indiana Manufacturers' and Shippers' association is growing steadily, several new firms having been added in the last few days as follows:

Wolf & Dessauer, Pickard House Furnishing company, Indiana Furniture company, Peter A. Moran Ice company, Pape Furniture company and Charles F. Lucas Poultry and Supply company. This brings the total membership to about one hundred.

The association has up at the present time the question of securing a better carload rate for shipments on butter, poultry and eggs for the benefit of shippers of that commodity, the carload rate and the less carload rate now being the same.

RATIFY WAGE AGREEMENT.

Bituminous Miners Favor It by Overwhelming Vote.

Indianapolis, April 18.—By a vote of 109,709½ to 32,139, members of the United Mine Workers of America in the bituminous coal fields have ratified the Cleveland wage agreement, according to the tallies who completed counting the ballots last night. The result of the ballot, according to Secretary-Treasurer Edwin Perry, will be the return of 241,500 soft coal miners to work within a week. In a few districts the return to the mines may be delayed by internal differences.

The ratification of the agreement means peace in the bituminous field until March 31, 1914, with the miners obtaining 5, 4 and 3 cent increases a ton on the class of coal mined and an increase of 5.26 per cent on other work.

While the outcome of the vote was never doubted by the miners' officials here, the heavy vote against the agreement caused surprise as it was believed the agreement would be ratified by 90 per cent.

FROST WILL DO NO HARM.

Vegetation Will Not Suffer From Freeze Predicted Tonight.

A light frost tonight is the prediction handed out from the local weather observatory today. According to the atmospheric conditions, this will be followed by another day of cold weather, but the rain and snow will be missing, as fair weather is slated for this territory. A variety of weather was dished out today and rain and snow alternated, as if rivaling each other in determining which could cause the most uninviting compliments of those who are unfortunate enough to be compelled to expose themselves to the elements.

Weather Forecaster W. S. Palmer states that the clouds will break away before night and with clear skies a light frost will result. Local market gardeners say vegitation is not far enough matured to be damaged a particle by the frost. Everything in the garden line is late, as is the fruit.

BEGIN REGISTRATION WORK.

Commissioners Will Select Places for Voters.

Secretary John Wessel, of the county democratic organization, and the county commissioners, will begin the task of selecting places in the fifty-two precincts of the county where the voters may register on May 9. There will be one registration place in each precinct in the county, and voters who wish to cast a ballot at the general election in November must sign their names, politic sand place of residence either on May 9, September 12 or October 7.

County Auditor Calvin Brown has 20,000 registration blanks which will be sent out to be properly filled previous to the day of registration in order to facilitate the work. Registration blanks will be distributed by the different committeemen and will be felt at stores in the various precincts.

WORK TRAIN HITS INTERURBAN CAR

Ran Past Switch at Cassville and Twenty-Five Were Injured.

LOCAL WOMAN THERE

Running past a switch near Cassville, four miles north of Kokomo, an Indiana Union Traction company work train collided with a northbound passenger car Wednesday night, and nearly all of the twenty-five or more passengers on the latter, were injured. The passenger car was the property of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company and was manned by an Indiana Union company crew. Mrs. Aaron M. Reichelderfer, wife of Sheriff Reichelderfer, of Allen county, was a passenger on the car but escaped injury and reached this city late last night.

Three men are reported to have been seriously injured. Their names have not been announced here, but they were taken with others injured to the Kokomo hospital. The passenge car was running late and trying to make up time, while it is alleged that the work train was running at a rate of not less than thirty miles an hour. The motorman and one of the work crew on the train was seriously injured, and a young student who was riding in the smoking compartment of the limited was hurled through the window by the force of the impact and sustained serious injuries.

Mrs. Reichelderfer is the only Fort Wayne person reported as a passenger on the limited. She was returning from the Indiana Girl's school, where she had placed a young girl. Mrs. Reichelderfer states that the work car ploughed its way beneath the passenger, which was built on higher trucks. Neither car left the grade.

A train on the L. E. & W., railroad, near the scene of the accident, was stopped by an official of the company, who was a passenger on the limited. The injured were removed to Kokomo on this train. The limited car was known as No. 306, and was one of the latest models operated by the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company.

WAS DETERMINED TO DIE.

Marion Woman Twice Foiled in Suicide Attempt.

Marion, Ind., April 18.—Twice attempting to commit suicide while in the office of Dr. V. V. Cameron, coroner of Grant county, the life of Mrs. Ical Beebe, 32, was saved in both cases by the physician, who first knocked a bottle containing acid from the woman's hands and then forcibly restrained her when she tried to throw herself from the office window. The woman is believed to be insane and was locked in the jail.

Before making the attempts on her life, Mrs. Beebe, who is a daughter of Deputy Sheriff I. W. Ruth, went to a local insurance office and paid the premium of her life policy.

RESOLUTIONS BEFORE BOARD.

Resolutions will be up before the board of public works tonight for confirmation for the opening of Howell street to Custer avenue, Beaver avenue from Home avenue to Broadway and Koenig street to the first alley north of Colerick and for an alley along the Pennsylvania tracks at Garden street and for the widening of Packard avenue from Indiana to Beaver.

RESIDENCE ROBBED.

A thief entered the house of August Beyrau, the slate roofer, at 2548 John street, yesterday and carried off a purse containing $2.50. The purse was taken from a bureau drawer and the thief seemed to know where to look for it. Nothing else was disturbed in the house.

DOESN'T MEASURE UP TO THE BIG JOB

Roosevelt Quite Frank in Discussing Taft's Qualifications.

QUESTION OF SOCKS

Auburn, Neb., April 18.—Col. Roosevelt's views on the qualifications of the president were brought out in a speech which he delivered this morning in Nebraska City at the beginning of today's campaigning in this state.

"Often we have to try a man out," he said. "He may be a first class lieutenant, but doesn't do in command of the army. Often the lieutenant when he becomes commander means well, but means well feebly, and you don't get much out of it if you have a lot of strong men around him who don't mean well at all."

After again charging that President Taft had entrusted his fate to Senators Lorimer, Penrose, Gallinger and others whom he characterized as opposed to the rule of the people, he added:

"When I was president I saw all those men. I consulted with them, but I did not let them be my masters. Whenever there was a line-up between them and the people I was against them."

The colonel brought out a laugh from the crowd with a new epigram. He was speaking of the "silk stocking crowd," who, he said, were against him. He said: "The silk stocking, if he is a game man, is just as good as if he did not wear any socks at all."

Colonel Roosevelt's program called for a day's run through the southeastern section of the state, ending at Lincoln, where he speaks tonight.

LOCAL BREWERY WORKMEN AGREE

Accept Increase and Shorter Hours, Then Sign the Contract.

FOR THREE YEARS

Having agreed to sign a three years' contract presented by the master brewers, members of the Brewery Workers local union, No. 62, have accepted an advance in salary and shorter working hours, officially settling the pending agreement which was supposed to have been signed April 1. The new agreement gives the brewer workers an average of $2 per week advance in salary and a working day of eight instead of nine hours. In turn the master brewers have been furnished three year contracts from the union men. The new wage scale and working hours affects about 150 local workers.

For some time the agreement was held unsigned as the brewery workers wished to bind themselves for two years only, but when they were granted increased wages and shorter hours the difficulty was peacefully settled.

For Lower Michigan—Snow or rain this afternoon and tonight; Friday fair.

Summary of Weather Conditions.

The southwestern storm has moved northeastward over the Ohio valley, being central over the lower lake region this morning; it has given general rains during the last 24 hours from the lake region and Ohio valley to the Atlantic coast districts, and some snow is reported this morning from Michigan, northern Illinois and northern Indiana. Temperatures are low this morning throughout the central and western states, and frosts are reported as far south as Arkansas. Fair weather prevails from the Mississippi to the Rockies, but another storm which has appeared in the west is giving some rain or snow over portions of the Rocky mountain and plateau regions.

In this section fair weather will prevail tonight and Friday; it will continue cool tonight, with temperature near the freezing point and some frost.

POLICE SAY LEE FORGED A CHECK

Held Under Bond on Charge of Public Intoxication for Present.

CITY COURT DOCKET

Harry Lee, husband of Mary Lee, arrested yesterday after an unsuccessful attempt to pass a forged check, was held under a bond of $200 until April 22 in the city court today and Chief of Police Abbott stated that the wife said he wrote one of the checks she attempted to pass.

He was badly intoxicated when he was arrested last night and in no condition to make any statement. She was held under a bond of $1,000, which she had been unable to furnish. Members of the family contend that she was either demented or under the influence of drugs when she offered one of the checks yesterday.

The Other Cases.

Sumner Jennings, arrested by the police a day or two ago on a charge of loitering, stated to the court that he is known in St. Louis as "Dozen Dollars" and the judge fined him that amount and sent him to jail.

Charles Beldon and Wash Shirey, plain drunks, were allowed to go and Frank Schults and Hugh O'Connor were fined $1 and $5, respectively.

John Dennis and Ralph Hart, railroad employes from Garrett, had a skeleton key with which they unlocked a door to their cell last night after they had been arrested for public intoxication. Dennis drew $5 and costs and Hart got $1 and costs.

MERCHANTS WANT NEW LAW CHANGED

Tell Council That Ordinance Does Away With Desirable Signs.

TO PLAN A REVISION

Following a meeting Wednesday night between members of the Fort Wayne Retail Merchants' association and members of the city council, in which the merchants pointed out objections to the new sign ordinance, President George M. Haffner made announcement that the association, at its next meeting, May 6, will discuss the measure and suggest revisions of the new law for submission to the council. The opinion expressed by merchants is that the new ordinance practically does away with all the effective signs, electrical and otherwise, leaving only the cheaper and undesirable one for the view of the public.

The councilmen present declared they will give the business men fair treatment in the matter, adding, however, that objections should have been presented before the ordinance was passed. The merchants declare they should have been made aware of the fact that such an ordinance was being prepared.

The following is a portion of the new law which the business men find objectionable:

"Section 6. The lower edge of all signs shall be at least twelve (12) feet above the grade of the sidewalk and in no event shall the inner edge of any sign be more than eighteen (18) inches from the building wall or property line, nor shall the outer edge of any sign project more than four (4) feet over the public highway or sidewalk from the building wall or property line, nor extend higher than the upper coping of that part of any building to which it may be attached, and if hung in an alley, the lower edge shall be at least twenty (20) feet above the grade of such alley."

Lecturer Tells Theosophists Moral Leader Will be Brown.

Kansas City, Mo., April 17.—Lecturing before the Kansas City Theosophical society on "The Coming of Christ," D. S. M. Unger, of Chicago, declared that he knows for a fact that Christ is coming back to earth within the next twenty years.

"Whenever a nation of the world needs a great leader real badly he turns up," Mr. Unger said. "The world is sadly in need of a great religious leader these days, and so I know Christ is coming back."

In order that humanity might have less trouble in being certain of the presence of Christ, Mr. Unger said he would have a brown body.

LYRIC THEATER.

The offering at the Lyric today and night is an imp two reel feature. This is a production of exceptionally quality with Asta Neilson, Denmark's greatest actress, in the leading part. The title of this wonderful picture is "Woman Always Pays," a love story constructed on entirely new lines. Friday another Rex special. "The Beauty and the Beast." This is a great story with the Rex surprises.

One was a cigar dealer, whose arrest is to be made a test case. The others were two cigarette salesmen, who were giving away samples.

The order provides that book stores may remain open for the sale of papers and magazines, but must not sell books. Two men entered a book store and one called for a sporting paper. He was supplied. The other asked for a Bible and was told to return tomorrow to make the purchase.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"DOCTOR DE LUXE"

With Ralph Herz and the New York Company at Majestic This Evening.

"Doctor De Luxe" is the musical comedy that has "made good" and the engagement at the Majestic this evening will be a sort of call for all people who appreciate a sensible, humorous book and good lyrics when set to music of the popular, whitleable sort, and presented by a capable cast of principals, and then the girls! However much a beauty chorus may be advertised and however adroitly the charms of the respective members may be disclosed by the photographic route, in a theater illusions are quickly dispelled. But the girls of the "Doctor De Luxe" are by no means illusionary. Mr. Gaites has given them much to do. And for that the patrons of the Majestic must thank him.

The opening scene, a "Pet Emporium" showing many beautiful dogs and cats, is not only a distinct novelty but so daring and picturesque as to attract the attention of prominent producers who have declared it to be the best example of the "truly unusual."

Camden Miss Suffers Sixteen Days From Dangerous Disorder.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 17.—For sixteen days Miss Marie Shinn, 17 years old, has been confined to her home, 125 North Twenty-fourth street, Camden, a victim of the hiccoughs, and notwithstanding a physician has been in attendance three times daily, she appears to be growing weaker, causing great alarm to relatives and friends. Specialists have so far been unable to relieve the girl to any great extent. She has experienced some relief after special treatments, but only for short periods.

Miss Shinn was stricken after a hearty meal during the holiday season, and gradually grew worse, until she is now unable to leave her bed. She had a similar attack several months ago, and was a sufferer for some days, but it was believed that she had fully recovered.

Financing Political Campaigns Under the New Indiana Statutes

When the last Indiana legislature passed what has come to be known as the corrupt practice act to safeguard the integrity of the ballot and to place a curb upon illegitimate use of money in political campaigns, it took a distinct step in advance and one against which nobody who believes in fairness and honesty will be heard to object.

But it multiplied the troubles of the men who must assume the burden of financing Indiana campaigns of each of the political parties, and will probably cause a lot of the party patriots some sleepless nights. Under the time-honored custom that has prevailed in Indiana from the day when the first candidate offered himself as a sacrifice that human liberty might be preserved by electing him to office, the campaign committee took one fleeting glance at the salary of the job he was seeking, another at the candidate's cash in hand or his ability to "raise it," and promptly declared an assessment. Against this assessment no candidate had the temerity to appeal. If in his own mind there lurked a disposition to rebel, it was quickly dispelled by a contemplation of the variety of things the machine could do to his budding hopes when voting day came 'round.

Now all this is changed. There can be no "assessments." Instead, the candidate will be permitted to "donate" or "contribute." It must be a sort of free-will offering to the cause—quite unselfish and palpably disinterested. That there are legitimate uses for money in a political campaign cannot be doubted, and it is also highly probable that the new law will abolish much of the crooked expenditures in Indiana campaigns. It will be interesting to observe whether the extraction of proper lubrication for the campaign machinery by "donation" or "contribution" will prove more painless to the candidate than the old method, which, though sometimes abrupt and unfeeling to the point of rudeness, never failed to prove efficacious.

If one is to judge from the tenor of interviews credited to him some time ago, the three hours' time allotted the appellees for argument when the "Tom Marshall" constitution case comes up next Wednesday will be all too brief to permit Hon. Addison C. Harris to enumerate all the objections he has to the proposed constitution and the method of its adoption.

The report of Superintendent Guy C. Hanna shows that Allen county has a total of thirty-five representatives in the Indiana Boys' school at Plainfield, and that during the past year the county in the payment of one-half the cost of their maintenance as required by law expended the sum of $1,060.74.

Well, the bond issue question is now up to the voters of the Sixth ward, who are to be heard by the city council this evening. That the outcome of earlier ward hearings has been bitterly disappointing to the friends of this important movement is plainly manifest. The Sixth has a magnificent opportunity to immortalize itself.

HUNDREDS OF LIVES SAVED THROUGH THE MEDIUM OF WIRELESS TELEGRAPH

SAYS PEOPLE SHOULD BE A UNIT FOR BCND ISSUE.

Editor Sentinel: The bond issue that is at present agitating the people of Fort Wayne is a matter on which the people should be a unit in the determination to beautify the river banks of the city. The working men in particular who have nothing to lose and every think to gain should stand as a solid phalanx for a movement which means miles of recreation grounds and miles of deep water for sight-seeing and pleasure boating to the poor of the city who from one year's end to another never get away from Fort Wayne because the income is all needed for the necessities of life. While for the laboring people who have a better income and go away from Fort Wayne for sight-seeing in other cities on the ground that there is nothing to see in Fort Wayne, this movement to issue bonds should arouse in them the greatest enthusiasm, as it will give them an immense beauty spot and save them many dollars that would otherwise be spent in other cities.

Other cities have beautiful streets, elegant parks and lovely water fronts because the people of those cities paid the bill in some form to make these improvements possible, and the only way to do the same thing in Fort Wayne is to pay the bill and the best way to pay the bill and get quick results is by the issue of bonds, as immediate work can be started with the money in hand.

All this talk about it being a scheme of the rich to get an immense boulevard system for their automobiles is the sheerest nonsense, because the rich are divided on this question, the same as the poor. There are two kinds of rich, the liberal-hearted and the penurious. Those who favor the bond issue are all among the liberal hearted, while the penurious who believe in holding on to a cent till the Indian gives a war whoop will be found in the camp of the bond opponents.

Organized labor that was such a great factor in getting the tax levy through the council should in this instance be a unit in favor of the bond issue, as labor unions demand better sanitary conditions and more healthful surroundings for the working people and this is a movement to get something that is in accord with their demands, because the improvement of the river banks and the deepening of the channel will give Fort Wayne one of the healthiest and most lovely water fronts in the state.

Another thing that the bond issue has brought about is "the parting of the ways" between men who have stood shoulder to shoulder for many things for the benefit of humanity and the public welfare, and a notable instance with me is that I differ with my old friend and co-laborer in many battles for the public good, Jas. A. Reilly, on this question. Brother Reilly sees in the bond issue an attempt of the enemies of the municipally owned electric lights and waterworks to wreck these institutions and turn them over to private corporations who are using the bond issue as a cloak to get possession of these valuable utilities, and when I call his attention to the fact that D. N. Foster, Joseph Singmaster and other champions of municipal ownership are for the bond issue, it has no weight, and it is this same bugaboo that influences many others to oppose the issue of bonds for this laudable improvement, and many of the enemies of the bond issue are using Brother Reilly's argument to defeat this grand movement.

EDWARD MILLER.

ANTI-POLITICIAN ISSUES APPEAL TO SIXTH WARD.

To Friends of Greater Fort Wayne in the Sixth Ward: If just five more friends of the bond issue had turned out at the Fifth ward meeting at the city hall last Monday night, the purchase of the river front and parks would have carried. We needed just five besides the 151 present who were for it.

Moral—Come out yourself Thursday night at the city hall at 7:30 o'clock to vote for the bond issue, and bring four of your friends. It may take just five to win again. Bring more if you can.

Out in the Fifth ward, when the politicians who are opposing the River Front Bond Issue—and the leaders are all politicians— found that they were likely to be beaten in the vote, they sent over to a neighboring hall and brought in eighty-five men to vote "No." While those men lived in the ward and had a perfect right to vote, they did not first investigate the question as they should have done, but simply voted as their leaders said.

Moral—Let us for once, get a correct expression of just how the citizens themselves in the Sixth ward feel. Let the voters think for themselves. Then let us all turn out and win.

Keep out the ward-healer. This is no political question. It is a proposition which deals with the future of Fort Wayne. A few men have made it a question for personal aggrandizement, thinking to build up a political machine to stop the progress of this city which we choose to call a good city, a city of homes and churches. Those men, having political aspirations, have adopted petty politics, button-hole voters and draft them through a few leaders who are willing to get "into the machine."

Down with machine politics in matters which concern a Greater Fort Wayne. Let the citizens who think for themselves come out and vote their honest sentiments—vote for their own welfare and that of the city as they best see it—and we are confident in the success of the bond issue and the purchase and improvement of the river front and parks.

No friend of the bond issue has a bit of fault to find with the earnest man who thinks for himself and cannot see benefit of the purchase of the river front. He is mistaken, but probably through the fault of friends of the bond issue, who have not presented the matter to him as strenuously as the opponents of the proposition have worked —for they have worked night and day by any and all means to build up their political machine.

MR. ANTI-POLITICIAN.

PRESS COMMENT UPON PENNSYLVANIA RESULT.

Bosses.

Baltimore Sun: "The result in Pennsylvania is a warning to bosses in Maryland, as well as in other states, who attempt to override the popular will. The voters are striking over the heads of candidates at the bosses."

Management.

Philadelphia Press: "The result of the state primaries shows a desire for a change in the management of the republican party in Pennsylvania."

"Wholesome Dose."

Baltimore American: "Paradoxical as it may sound, it is likely that the losing of Illinois and Pennsylvania is a wholesome dose of medicine for those who are managing the Taft campaign."

Trouble and Unrest.

New York Times: "Mr. Roosevelt's instant profiting by the labor troubles in the anthracite region points with unmistakable directness to the quarter where the peril lies. Trouble, unrest, discontent, and disorder are the very substance of his strength."

"From the Mills of God."

Philadelphia North American: "In all reverence, we believe that the result of Saturday's primaries in Pennsylvania was grist from the mills of God. That overthrow of the wickedness alliance of money greed and political corruption that ever throttled liberty, civic conscience and popular government in an American state was no less than a providential benefaction."

Sins of Others.

New York Tribune: "Mr. Taft has suffered unjustly both in Illinois and Pennsylvania for the sins of others. Wherever it is presented on its own merits his candidacy will continue to command the party's respect and support."

Election Afterward.

Boston Post: "The stampede to Roosevelt in Pennsylvania may prove contagious. The country is now destined to witness one of the most remarkable contest in the political history. It will be exciting. But it is only for a nomination. There will be an election afterward, and—well, that will be another story."

Barely Half Elected.

New York World: "But barely half the delegates to the Chicago convention have so far been chosen, and in Illinois and Pennsylvania the Roosevelt people have worked hardest, spent their money most freely and have been most confident of success."

Sane Paths.

Philadelphia Inquirer: "We had hoped that Pennsylvania would have coolly and calmly taken this very dangerous situation into account and have done its best to get the party into sane paths. It had it within its power to make the nomination of Taft absolutely certain."

Illinois.

Baltimore News: "If Illinois made the president's nomination unwise and unsafe, Pennsylvania has made it impossible."

William Flinn.

Boston Herald: "Western Pennsylvania has long been afflicted by William Flinn, one of the very worst political bosses that Ireland ever contributed to the United States. Now Mr. Roosevelt, who would not sit at meat with Lorimer, has made cause with Flinn. His money has flooded the entire state. His organization has done its paralyzing work."

The Lake Shore, it is unofficially announced, will begin its Sunday lake business next Sunday. The regular announcement is expected tomorrow.

Family Stricken by Iroquois Fire Also Periled on Titanic

MRS. L. A. HIPPACH, SON AND DAUGHTER.

All the terrible fear that he had lost wife and daughter on the Titanic overwhelmed L. A. Hippach, a wealthy Chicago man, who only a few years ago went through the horrible experience of losing two beautiful daughters in the Iriquois fire.

Mrs. Hippach, long prostrated by the fiery death of her daughters, had finally gone to Europe to recuperate and was returning home with the remaining daughter, Jean, on the Titanic. At first it was believed both were lost. Then appeared the daughter's name among the survivors, but not the mother's. Finally Mrs. Hippach's name also was sent by wireless as among the rescued. The son and father went to meet them in New York.

IN THE CITY'S CHURCHES

RETIRED METHODIST PASTORS.

Better Provision Will Be Made for Their Support.

Members of the Methodist churches in this city have been informed that at the sessions of the Northern Indiana M. E. conference held at Wabash a committee consisting of Rev. H. N. Herrick, W. D. Parr and G. B. Work was appointed to provide means and inaugurate a campaign for the better support of the superannuated ministers of the denomination. The campaign to raise funds for this purpose would cover a period of two or three years. The idea is to raise a fund of $200,000 and allow the income from it to be distributed to those designated as conference claimants.

The committee appointed has named thirty other preachers who will be called to meet in Peru within the next few weeks to devise ways and means for carrying forward the work to a complete success. It is believed that the membership of the church throughout the conference is ready to respond to a concreted movement of this character, and that the time is not far distant when the veteran Methodist preacher will be assured comfort of body and peace of mind in his closing days.

A HAPPY CHILD IN A FEW HOURS

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's insides, the stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are clogged up with putrifying waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When your child is listless, drooping, pale, doesn't sleep soundly or eat heartily or is cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomachache, diarhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you surely will have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed. A little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

EXPRESSIONS OF SYMPATHY COME

People of All Lands Give Voice to Sorrow Over Titanic Horror.

TAFT MAKES A REPLY

Washington, April 18.—The expression of sympathy sent to President Taft yesterday by three American cardinals has been acknowledged by the president in a letter made public today by Cardinal Gibbons, as follows:

"My Dear Cardinal Gibbons: I have received the written expression by the Roman Catholic archbishops of the country in joint session with the trustees of the Catholic university of their profound grief of the awful loss of human lives in the sinking of the Titanic and on behalf of the bereaved I beg to express a grateful appreciation of this message of sympathy.

"I note in your communication the valued suggestion as to the necessity for legal provision for greater security of ocean travel.

"Sincerely yours,

"WM. H. TAFT."

President Taft yesterday made public cablegrams received from the king and queen of England and the king of Belgium, conveying their sympathies to the American people in the sorrows which have followed the Titanic disaster. The president's responses to both messages were also made public.

From King George.

The following was from King George: "The queen and I are anxious to assure you and the American nation of the great sorrow which we experience at the terrible loss of life that has occurred among the American citizens as well as among my own subjects by the foundering of the Titanic. Our two countries are so intimately allied by ties of friendship and brotherhood that any misfortunes which affect the one must necessarily affect the other and on the present terrible occasion they are both equally sufferers.

"GEORGE R. AND I."

President Taft's reply was as follows: "In the presence of the appalling disaster to the Titanic the people of the two countries are brought into community of grief through their common bereavement. The American people share in the sorrow of their kinsmen beyond the sea. On behalf of my countrymen, I thank you for your sympathetic message.

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

From Belgium King.

The message from King Albert, of Belgium was as follows: "I beg your excellency to accept my deepest condolences on the occasion of the frightful catastrophe to the Titanic, which has caused such mourning in the American nation."

The president's acknowledgment follows: "I deeply appreciate your sympathy with my fellow countrymen who have been stricken with affliction through the disaster to the Titanic."

The many expressions of grief to reach President Taft included one signed jointly by the three American cardinals, who are here attending the meeting of the trustees of the Catholic university.

PORTUGAL SENDS SYMPATHY.

Lisbon, Portugal, April 18.—The Portuguese senate this morning adopted unanimously a resolution expressing the sympathy of the government and people of Portugal with the victims of the Titanic disaster.

Inherits the Great Astor Fortune.

Vincent Astor, son of John Jacob Astor and heir to the greater part of the $200,000,000 Astor fortune by the death of his father, reported to have perished in the Titanic. He will also be head of the American Astor family, and its official representative in many enterprises. One of the stories told last summer, at the time of his father's marriage to 19-year-old Madeline Force (who survives her husband) was that young Vincent had been interested in Miss Force before his father met her.

"SAINTS" BELIEVE IN MANY VISIONS

Revelations Are a Part of the "Reorganized" Faith.

COME FROM HEAVEN

Kansas City, April 18.—The principal difference between the orthodox churches and the reorganized Latter Day Saints is this: While the orthodox believe that divine revelation ceased with Bible times, the "Saints" see no reason why it should not continue in these latter days as well. And they profess to have abundant reason for the belief. Not only does Joseph Smith, as the head of the church receive and promulgate occasionally what he declares to be the will of God on matters of church policy communicated to him directly, but among the rank and file of the members are multitudes who "dream dreams and see visions."

Two notable "revelations" have been promulgated by President Joseph Smith in recent years at sessions of the general conference in Independence. One of them indicated it was the will of God that Frederick M. Smith, son of the president and for several years one of his counselors, should be his successor in the presidential office whenever the time should come for the aged president, by reason of death or incapacity, to vacate it.

A Prompt Material Realization.

The other gave it out as the divine will that the Saints should establish in Independence a sanitarium for the healing of diseases and a home for the aged and infirm of the church. The latter has proved no idle dream of the aged prophet. It was four years ago the president made known the revelations, and there now stands in the northwestern part of Independence a big three-story brick building in a beautiful tract of seven acres which cost the church $61,000. It is all paid for and is being conducted, not primarily for the purpose of making money, but for the purpose of restoring to health disabled Saints, though persons outside the church are treated at the usual rates charged at good hospitals. As for the revelation concerning the presidency, it already has been consummated practically. Owing to his father's feebleness, blindness and impaired hearing, Frederick M. Smith now is the acting president of the church.

It is customary, at the meetings of the general conference, to hold a prayer meeting in the big auditorium in the early forenoon. At those meetings opportunity is given the Saints to testify. Many of them relate wonderful "experiences;" some from the humblest toll of angles appearing and talking to them, encouraging them in the midst of trials or reproving them for errors.

Anoint the Sick with Oil.

In consistent keeping with their belief in the miraculous, even in these latter days, the Saints still practice the apostolic custom of anointing the sick with oil and praying for their recovery. Many tell of cures effected in this way. The use of drugs is very rare among the Saints. Although nearly every other line of mercantile business is represented among the resident Saints of Independence, they have no drug store. Rarely is there a meeting of the general conference that the "committee on administration" is not called out of the church to go to the home of some Saint suffering with illness, to "lay on hands" with prayer and anoint with oil.

Another apostolic custom is the blessing of little children by some of the leaders of the church. Such ceremonies regularly are reported by the ministers and missionaries along with other statistics of their work such as baptisms or marriages.

The editor of the Peabody (Kas.) Herald has been helping to find American husbands for girls in Sweden, who took advantage of both his kindness and their own leap-year privileges. He made nine of them happy during the month of January, and will now undertake to do the same for two more.

Told by the Troubled Tourist

At last the secret is out: we kidnapped Rip Van Winkle," remarked th. Troubled Tourist, as he laid aside his paper.

"Here we've gone along for years supposing that Rip was our own special brand of long distance sleeper and peculiar to our soil, like Connecticut wooden nutmegs and pie. But it's all off. We only kidnapped him.

"Here's a fellow says he's dug up the original Rip Van Winkle from the private writings of a Dutchman who flourished about fourteen-hundred-and-froze-to-death and that there are seventeen points of resemblance between his story and Wash Irving's Rip. The main difference, however, as the digger-up admits, is that the fifteenth century Dutchman's Rip slept forty-seven years, and R. V. Winkle, of Catskill-in-the-Catskills, only slept twenty.

"Next thing you know somebody will open an Egyptian tomb and discover the original Huckleberry Finn, dead cat and all.

"It certainly is the age of discovery. Almost any minute now somebody is going to dig up that Saratoga trunk filled with the Bill Shakespeare plays that were written by Frank Bacon. It's about due. In fact, I think I am correct in saying that the discovery is a little overdue. The press work has been ample. Now let's have the show.

"KIDNAPPING RIP."

"Some of our best little authors certainly seem to have been as busy as the old masters, who appear to have spent most of their time painting up a couple of sets of each masterpiece and distributing them around playfully so that posterity would have all the fun of turning them up a few centuries later and labelling one real and the other spurious. Only trouble with posterity it is never can decide which is which.

"If this thing keeps on I think I'll start a Bureau for Exploded Theories and Busted Cherished Ideals, guaranteed to reproduce any character or historic accomplishment at least a couple of centuries before it happened. Before I get through I'll be able to show that the Battle of Waterloo was only a moving picture reproduction and the Deluge a second day story.

TAKES OFFICE AT EIGHTY-ONE.

Joseph Dennis, of Bellefontaine, O., Begins Term as Mayor.

Bellefontaine, Ohio, April 17.—Mayor Joseph Dennis, of Bellefontaine, is one of the oldest mayors in the United States. January 1 was his eighty-first birthday, and he celebrated it by again taking office of mayor, which he held some thirty years ago.

"I expect to give the town a good business administration and enforce all of the laws and ordinances," said the aged executive. "A man is no older than he feels, and I do not see why I will not be able to give the people of Bellefontaine as good an administration as a man sixty years younger."

Dennis won in a three-cornered fight in the last election.

Miss Ruth Ridenour, who is to be one of the lovely May day brides, was the guest of honor yesterday at the home of Mrs. J. M. Carmer, 321 East Berry street, when the ladies of the local W. C. T. U. entertained. There were about twenty ladies present. Music and recitations were a part of the program for the good time, but an unexpected feature came about when two young girls of the company marched before Miss Ridenour and left a washtub in front of her. After the laugh subsided the rest of the company began putting things in the tub and when they were through the bride-elect found she had aluminum gifts for the kitchen, a pretty mirror and a beautiful picture already framed. Mrs. Carmer had her rooms decorated in appropriate colors, white and yellow, and in the delicious refreshments served these same colors appeared. There were palms to set off the bright coloring and white carnations were given as favors.

Weisenburger—Altekruse.

The wedding of Miss Augusta B. Altekruse and Mr. Herman F. Weisenburger, which took place on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at St. John's Reformed church, was a very pretty one. Rev. J. H. Bosch performed the ceremony and there was a gathering of relatives and friends of the bride and groom to see them married. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Esther Altekruse, who led the bridal party. The bride entered the church with her brother, Mr. Arthur Altekruse, and she met at the altar the bridegroom and his attendant, Mr. Otto Hessert. The bride presented a beautiful appearance and she never looked sweeter. Her gown was a white satin trimmed with pearl fringe and her veil of tulle was fastened with a tiny wreath of bride roses. The bride carried a bouquet of bride roses. The honor maid wore a gown of cream batiste trimmed with chenille fringe and chiffon and in her hair were pink roses that corresponded with a bouquet of roses she carried. Miss Altekruse made a lovely and attractive bridesmaid. After the marriage service the bridal party and near relatives of both bride and groom together with Rev. and Mrs. Bosch, were driven to the home of the bride, in Lake township, where a sumptuous and delicious wedding repast was served. There were about thirty people present. The supper tables were decorated in pink and white and a handsomely frosted wedding cake occupied a conspicuous place. Assisting in receiving the wedding guests were the bride's mother and sister, Mrs. Emelia Altekruse and Miss Henrietta Altekruse. At 8 o'clock in the evening the bride and groom left for a trip to Buffalo, N. Y. For traveling the bride wore a dress of brown cloth with coat and hat to match. The bride is an active member of the Young Ladies' guild of St. John's Reformed church. A shower party was given the bride recently by members of the guild who remembered her at the time with many pretty and valuable gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Weisenburger will be at home after April 27 in Lake township with the groom's mother, Mrs. Katherine Weisenburger. Both bride and groom have a large acquaintance and many friends who admire them for their many fine attributes of character.

Kelker—Muhler.

One of the largest weddings ever held in the Cathedral took place this morning at 9 o'clock when Miss Marie Jeanette Muhler, daughter of Mrs. Mary Muhler, and Mr. John Frank Kelker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Kelker, were married by Rev. Francis T. Moran, of Cleveland, O., who celebrated the low nuptial mass. The wedding music was rendered by Mr. Edward Noll, organist, and Mr. Clem Weber, who sang the mass. The bride entered the church with her brother, Mr. Charles B. Muhler, jr., and was preceded by her sister, Miss Maude Muhler, who was the only attendant the bride had. At the altar the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Harry Hogan, awaited the coming of the bride. Mr. Charles Golden and Mr. Frank Biemer assisted in seating the many friends who witnessed the wedding, including a large representation of the Cathedral congregation as well as members of prominent families of the city not included in the Cathedral parish. The bride made a very handsome appearance in a stylish suit of white basket cloth with a bodice of white silk made with Irish lace yoke and sleeves and with further trimming of satin cord with a touch of gold passamenterie. The bride's hat was a white chip of picturesque shape with trimmings of maline and aigrettes. The bride carried her first prayerbook, a gift from a family friend. It is bound in silver and with the prayerbook was a marker of white ribbons and white rosebuds. Miss Maude Muhler wore a beautiful new shade of blue diagonal cloth with other accessories of her costume to match in color and her hat of white Milan braid was veiled in blue chiffon to match her dress. The bodice of the bridesmaid's suit was of white lace and marquisette with a bit of coral in its trimmings. The bridesmaid held pink roses made in a colonial bouquet and tied with pink tulle and there was a rosebud wreath on her hat of the same tone. At the wedding breakfast served at the home of the bride in West Wayne street only immediate relatives and the bridal party were present. Rev. J. R. Quinlan was included in the guests. The house was tastefully decorated by Miss Flick in spirea, palms, plumosus and roses. In the parlors were baskets of Easter lilies and white roses mingled with ferns and tied with bows of gauze ribbon. The chandeliers were partially hidden in ferns and plumosus. The diningroom decorations were in pink with pink-hooded candles to accentuate the tone and Killarney roses in Italian ware vases lending their graceful charm to the scene. The Cathedral was also decorated with palms and Easter lilies in the sanctuary. The out of town guests present at the wedding breakfast were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunt, of Fremont, O.; Rev. Father Moran, of Cleveland, and Mrs. H. J. Trentman, of Auburn. This afternoon the bride and groom left for an eastern trip which will include New York. They will remain in Pittsburg after their trip until the first of June as Mr. Kelker, who is motive power inspector for the Western division of the Pennsylvania, has work which will keep him there until that time. For traveling the bride wore a sapphire blue satin broadcloth suit with hat of natural straw color trimmed with blue to match the suit. The bride is a daughter of the late Hon. Charles Muhler, who served as mayor of the city during his life, and her family has always been one of prominence, though her own popularity does not depend on that fact but on her genuine and kindly personality. Mr. Kelker is a fine young man of ability and character and with many warm friends.

A Country Party.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Eby and daughter, Mrs. L. Hollopeter, who live nine miles north of the city, entertained friends at a dinner party on Sunday at noon. The guests were Miss Marie Archer and Kenneth Eby, of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. William Tonkel. Mrs. Grubaugh and the Misses Tonkel.

A CARD GAME CALLED "ANIMALS."

An amusing game called "animals" may be played by four people with a single pack of cards. If there are eight players two packs of cards are needed. Only even numbers can play. At the beginning each player takes the name of an animal, the longer the names the better, as hippopotamus, rhinoceros, boa-constrictor, and so forth.

The cards are all dealt out, and as each player receives his cards he places them, faces downward, in rows in front of him. When all are ready, the player to the right of the dealer turns up one card, the player next to him turning up one card at a time.

When one of the players turns up a card that matches one already up the player who is the first to call out the name of the animal he has assumed gets the two cards. For instance, let us say that A, B, C, D are playing. A is called tiger, B, lion, C rat and D cat. A turns up a Jack of Spades. B and C. turn up something indifferent, then D turns up another Jack, but B is the first to notice it and calls out "lion" before any one else observes the match.

The object of the game is to obtain the greatest number of cards.

After a card club the other night the hostess had this funny little contest that amused the guests very much. On a tray she had small bottles all the same size and color, each one numbered; then she passed bits of paper with pencils and told each one to take a whiff from each bottle, then write down the contents opposite the corresponding number on the programs. These were collected and a prize of a dainty little vinaigrette was given to the lady having the most odors correct, and a bottle of perfumery for the man with the most. Below are the contents for the bottles, but a hostess may arrange whatever she desires:

1. oil of cloves; 2. oil of cedar; 3. oil of sassafras; 4. oil of anise; 5. oil of bitter almonds; 6. pennyroyal; 7. essence peppermint; 8. vanilla; 9. cinnamon; 10. wood alcohol; 11. valerian; 12. bay rum; 13. camphor; 14. ammonia; 15. rhubarb; 16. arnica; 17. spirits of nitre; 18. turpentine.

Successful dressing does not always mean buying the most clothes. It more frequently means spending a little more with a responsible dry cleaner that otherwise would go for new clothes.

Don't discard your soiled and wrinkled garments. We can make them as spic and span as new.

EMBROIDERED SCALLOPS.

When embroidering scallops on the edge of doilies, center pieces or any linen, silk or cotton material, cut out the scallops one-eighth of an inch from the stamped line, turn back the material on the right side to the stamped line and sew it in place with very small stitches.

Over this turned-in edge fill in the scallops with darning cotton in the usual way, then embroider or buttonhole the scallops with silk or mercerized cotton.

By turning in the edge this way you avoid all possibility of the material fraying after the scallops are cut out. The turned-in edge also helps as filler.

Experts in the art of embroidery declare this to be the very best method of working a scalloped or uneven edge.

Try it, and see for yourself.

How Ladies' Improve Looks!

"Many ladies, old and young, suffer a round of tortures with their nerves, and many are so frail, thin and bloodless, that their splendid features are lost sight of, while a vain attempt to conceal the angularity of the figure, deceives no one but themselves and really excites the pity or ridicule of the world," said a well known largely employed practicing physician, in a recent lecture at a young ladies' college. "I do not mind exposing a little secret of mine to all such, as it can do no harm and may result in much happiness and health. It is simply this: Any thin, bloodless, nervestructured man or woman, can become as fat as the fattest by taking regularly for several months an easily obtained pharmaceutical product known by the profession and pharmacists as 'three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets,' put up in sealed packages with directions for home use."

Health and Beauty Helps

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

K. B.: Regardless of your age, I would not recommend the use of face powder. It clogs the skin's pores and in time will make your complexion rough and anything but handsome. The best kind of a beautifier is made by dissolving 4 ounces of spurmax in ½ pint witch hazel (or hot water), adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. This will whiten and refine your skin. It takes away that oily, shiny look better than powder and does not show or rub off so easily. This lotion will clear your complexion and give to it a wholesome charming tone, also affording the skin splendid protection from chapping in the wind.

Mrs. F. B.: To have a head of perfect hair you must keep your scalp absolutely clean and free from dandruff. If you will shampoo twice a month with a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water, rinsing thoroughly with clear water, you will find your hair will always be fluffy, bright and clean. This shampoo is so far superior to others that the best class of hairdressers use it almost exclusively. It makes the hair dry quickly without any signs of streaking, brittleness or other bad effects which are caused by using soap. There is nothing like it for removing dandruff, cleansing the hair and giving to it that much-desired fluffiness and brilliance.

C. P.: Your pimples, sallowness and hollow cheeks are due to a run-down condition of the body. The only way to remove these ills is to clear your blood of its impurities. Dissolve one ounce hardene and ¾ cupful of sugar in ¼ pint alcohol, then add hot water to make a quart. Take a tablespoonful before each meal. This is a splendid system tonic and will soon restore the look of perfect health to you; face, fill out your cheeks and give you the energy and ambition which only a healthy person has. It is a wonderful blood-purifier, energizer and liver regulator.

M.D.: You can make your hair grow in thick and abundant by rubbing into the scalp twice a week the following tonic: Mix together ½ pint alcohol, 1 ounce quinzoin and ½ pint cold water. This will show better results in a short time than all the "hair growers" on the market put together. Oils and vaseline really do very little good but this tonic will be a most pleasant surprise to you in its beneficial results. It removes dandruff, stops scalp-irritation and checks falling hair almost instantly.

Miss G. G.: You will find nothing as good to strengthen your weak eyes, clear them of redness and make them brilliant and beautiful as this simple eye tonic: Dissolve an ounce of crystos in a pint of water and put a few drops in each eye twice a day. Many very successful oculists recommend this fine tonic owing to its great merit. There is nothing better for treating granulated lids and it acts very quickly.

Mrs. E.: It is a very simple matter to remove every trace of hair from your chin. Make a paste with a little powdered delatone and water, then spread on hairy surface and in two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs will have vanished. This is a painless and certain way in which to banish hairy growths.

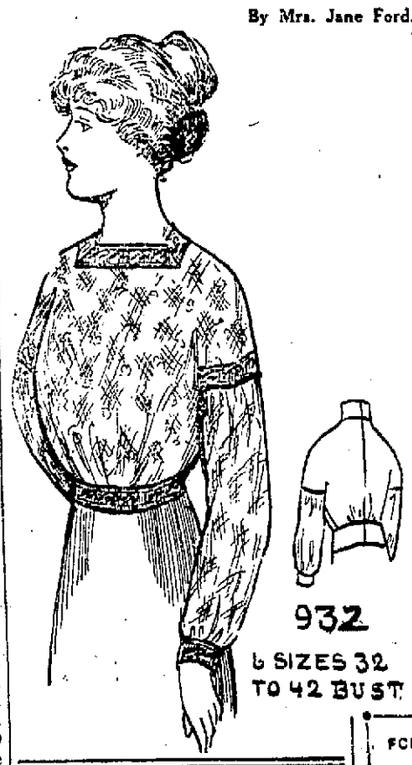
Mrs. M.: Do not cut the eyelashes. Instead apply a little pyroxin to lash-roots with thumb and forefinger and they will grow in silky and long. Thin eyebrows can be made to grow in thick and long if you will apply pyroxin each night with the forefinger. Use caution and do not get any pyroxin where hair is not wanted

Juniata: The cost of fat-reduction need not be high. If you will buy 4 ounces of parnotis and dissolve it in 1½ pints hot water, you will have the best and safest fat-remedy known. Take a tablespoonful before meals and your excess fat will soon be gone. No dieting or violent exercises are necessary and your skin will remain smooth and unwrinkled. Parnotis is absolutely harmless and has worked wonders where other remedies failed.

A. L. M.: I do not like to recommend any of the prepared cold creams, as most of them are too greasy and are likely to cause hair to grow on your skin. Try this: Stir 1 ounce almozoin and 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine in ½ pint cold water. This will make an excellent cream that will cleanse your skin and keep it smooth, velvety and free from chapping. It will keep your complexion radiant, perfectly clear and free from blackheads and wrinkles.

DAINTY, DRESSY SLEEVES.

By Mrs. Jane Ford.



WOMEN are so unwilling to part with the comfortable and becoming kimono blouse that designers find it difficult to introduce sleeves that are set in the waist at the armhole. Since the full length arm covering is now approved by fashion, it is necessary in order to get a dressy blouse that combines both features to do clever planning in designing the sleeves. A charming model, shown in the drawing, offers many possibilities in the way of using two materials. It will be lovely developed in sheer or medium heavy weaves, and can be used as a separate blouse, or in combination with a skirt to form a costume.

The pattern provides for either a high or Dutch neck, and if the waist is made from handsome materials a deep square collar with pointed fronts, and sleeve bands of heavy lace, will make a most effective finish. A waist of this character that would be becoming to most women was of soft black satin, with the full part of the sleeves of black chiffon laid over white. Broad bands of Russian lace, piped with black velvet and gold braid, finished the kimono sleeves, and a square collar of the same lace, trimmed to correspond, was worn over the blouse.

DINING AND ITS SERVICE.

Half the pleasure of a dinner lies, not in the eating of food, but in the serving of it. The experienced hostess knows this and sees to it that the dinner, no matter how simple, is served faultlessly. There are a great many women in this world who pride themselves on their "good table," and yet they neglect the most important feature of an enjoyable meal. Good food badly served amounts almost to a crime.

Perhaps a few hints onthe serving of a meal will prove valuable to many hostesses.

No matter what the occasion, the table is set in two ways—that is, either for serving the food from the table or from the side table. Serving a meal from the side table calls for the assistance of at least one capable waitress. In either case the laying of the table, as far as the "cover" is concerned, is the same. The term "cover" includes a plate, a glass for water, napkin and such silver as is needed by one person in partaking of the various dishes of the meal, laid in suitable space.

Serving a Dinner.

The plate occupies the center of this space, at the right of the plate the knives are disposed in order of use, the one farthest from the plate being the first used. Next the knives are placed, the soup spoon (bowl upward) and the fork for oysters, when these articles are included in the menu. At the point of the knife the glass is placed, and on the plate the napkin, neatly folded.

When the plate holds oysters, melon, fruit cocktail, etc., the napkin is laid beyond the forks. At the left of the plate the forks, tines upward, are disposed in the order of use, the one farthest from the plate being the one first needed. For other meals than dinner, a butter plate or a bread and butter plate may be used. This plate stands above the forks and a little to the right of them.

When the meal is served from the side table, the space within the covers is reserved for flowers, with possibly a dish or two of bonbons, which serve as part of the decoration. After jellies, pickles, olives, rolls, wafers, etc., have been passed, they are returned to their respective places on the sideboard, as no food other than that on individual plates appears upon the table. The waitress keeps an eye upon the plates and is quick to note and supply the needs of any one.

When the meal is served from the side table a plate should always occupy the center of the cover space until the table is cleared for dessert.

Cream of Lettuce Soup.

Pull apart four heads of lettuce, wash and drop them in a kettle of boiling, salted water. Boil uncovered for ten minutes, drain and throw into a pan of cold water. In a few minutes drain, chop fine and rub through a sieve. In a double boiler scald one quart of milk; rub one tablespoonful of butter and two tablespoonfuls of flour to a paste, add to the hot milk and stir until the mixture thickens. Add a few spoonfuls of this to the lettuce pulp, stir until well blended, and add to the soup. Season to taste with salt and pepper, simmer five minutes, uncovered, and serve with croutons.

Orange Pudding.

Squeeze sufficient oranges to give two-thirds of a cupful of juice and of lemons one-half that amount. Put the fruit juices with one cupful of water in a saucepan and sweeten to taste. When the mixture boils stir in three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch which has been moistened with a little cold water. Cook ten minutes then stir in quickly the whites of three eggs which have been beaten to a stiff froth. Stir over the fire for two minutes, then have ready a wetted mold. Put in it a layer of the pudding, then some slices of orange, and fill up the mold in this way. Serve with a custard made of the yolks of the eggs, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one pint of milk and a little grated orange rind.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORING TOWNS

A GREAT DAY FOR FISHING AT WINONA

Pulled Out Finny Tribe as Fast as the Hooks Could Be Thrown in Waters.

Warsaw, Ind., April 18.—Fifty men and women lined a small part of the canal between McDonald island and the mainland at Winona Tuesday from 10 o'clock in the morning until 1 o'clock in the afternoon and during that time caught several hundred croppies and black bass. The black bass were stragglers, the majority of the catches being croppies. Live minnows were used for bait. One string of sixty-six fish was carried away by Edwin Walters and William Diddel. People whose bait held out did not go home to dinner, but remained with the fishing, pulling up the croppies almost as rapidly as they could throw hooks into the water.

WEDDED ONLY A WEEK.

Then Trouble Began and Now She Has Secured a Divorce.

Huntington, Ind., April 18.—Evelyn Whitman, of Warren, was granted a divorce Wednesday from Edward Whitman. Whitman was called, but defaulted. The prosecuting attorney filed the usual answer in general denial and the matter was submitted to the court. Evelyn had little to say of the good qualities of her husband. Only one week did they live happily together before the trouble began. They were living at Montpelier when the storm broke at its worst and both left home simultaneously. Since then they have not lived together, about two years. Mrs. Whitman is now running a chicken farm near Warren and was able to pay the costs of the court proceedings when the divorce was granted.

DEATH OF MRS. JAMES DEAVER.

Bluffton, Ind., April 18.—Mrs. James Deaver, over sixty years old, one of the pioneer residents of Jackson township, died at her home in that township yesterday. The funeral will be held on Friday morning at 10 o'clock at South Chicago. She was one of the native pioneers of the southern part of the county and her maiden name was Lucretia Tomlinson. Her husband and three children survive.

IN FORT WAYNE HOSPITAL.

Decatur, Ind., April 18.—Mrs. Wesley Haggard, of Monroe, was taken to Fort Wayne yesterday by her husband and father, Milliard Hendricks, and this week she will be operated upon for a complication of troubles. Her condition is such that an operation is necessary to restore her to health.

Time Is the Test

The Testimony of Fort Wayne People Stands the Test.

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Fort Wayne people appreciate merit and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? A cure that lasts is the kind that every sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

Joseph R. Sunderland, 650 Putnam street, Fort Wayne, Ind., says: "I feel justified in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured from Meyer Bros. Co.'s drug store. I suffered for several years from a kidney weakness, coupled with severe pains in my back. Since I used Doan's Kidney Pills I have been in much better health and my kidneys have caused me very little trouble." (Statement given December 1, 1908.)

YEARS LATER.

On June 30, 1910, when Mr. Sunderland was interviewed, he said: "The benefit Doan's Kidney Pills brought me has been permanent. I have not had any pains or aches during the past year and a half."

Soap Bubbles.

The ancient Britons invented soap. The Romans, two thousand years ago, carried the invention back to Italy. They manufactured soap in Savona, whence the French word for it—savon.

There are natural soaps—the soaproot of Spain, the soapberry of Chili and the bark of the Peruvian soap tree.

At Quartetaro, in Mexico, soap takes the place of copper coinage.

The Tierra del Fuegans eat soap, finding the fat therein really nourishing. They say they like the taste, too.

Soap is made from garbage in the newest incinerating plants.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Ann Davis, widow of the late Lewis Davis, took place in Ossian M. E. church Monday afternoon. Mrs. Davis was 85 years of age and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, of Trenary, Mich., although she had lived a large share of her life in and around Ossian. The remains were brought from Michigan on Sunday and taken to the home of her son, Charles, living east of town. Mrs. Davis was the mother of fifteen children and eight are still living. They are this one daughter, Mrs. Mills and seven sons—Irvin, of Trenary, Mich.; Edward and William, of Silver Lake, Ind.; Andrew, of Ashley, Ind., and John, Charles and Newton, all of Ossian. All were present at the funeral, also several grandchildren from a distance.

Frank Rector, who has been confined to the house with a very severe attack of pneumonia, is again able to go out.

Miss Ruth Bailey, who was so seriously hurt last week in a runaway near Thurman, Ind., has been brought to her home in an auto and is doing as well as could be expected. A rib and her hip joint were broken.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blackburn, of Ashley, Ind., have been visiting in Ossian. They came Monday to attend the funeral of her grandmother, Mrs. Davis.

Mrs. David Hall, of Lefever street, is confined to her home with an attack of grip.

Mr. H. W. Winkler, 328 Huston Ave., Evansville, Ind., says he was cured of a severe case of kidney trouble through Foley Kidney Pills. He writes: "My kidneys were in bad shape and I suffered terribly with pains in my back, and the kidney action was very irregular. I took Foley Kidney Pills and now I am perfectly well and feel like a new man." Dreier Drug Co., Two Stores.

CUMMINS OFFERS HIS COMPROMISE

Democrats Expect Agreement Regarding Metal Schedule.

ANXIOUS FOR ACTION

Washington, April 18.—Senator Cummins, of Iowa, progressive republican, at a conference with the democratic members of the finance committee today submitted his bill for the revision of the metal schedule of the tariff law. It provides for considerable reduction on iron and steel rates—about midway between the present tariff and the house democratic bill—and the democratic members said they felt that an agreement with Senator Cummins could be reached.

Senator Simons, of North Carolina, who will have charge of the metal bill, said today that the democrats would insist that some legislation be enacted and he had reason to hope that a sufficient number of insurgent republicans would co-operate with the democrats to pass the metal, chemical, sugar and woolen bills through the senate.

Despite opposition by various boards of trade, the house committee on agriculture today voted to make favorable reports on bills designed to end gambling in futures on cotton and grain. Two measures were reported, one by Representative Beall, of Texas, democrat, dealing in cotton, and the other by Representative Lester, democrat, relating to corn, wheat and oats.

Vice President Wagatha, of New Orleans Concern, Under Arrest.

New Orleans, La., April 18.—Further investigation into affairs of the suspended Teutonia Bank and Trust company resulted in the arrest of A. Wagatha, vice president and former cashier, early today on the charge of receiving deposits knowing that the bank was insolvent. He furnished $10,000 bail.

Eugene F. Buhler, president, was arrested twice yesterday, four times in all. He is out under $45,000 bail to answer charges of embezzling $6,500 and $8,500, making false statements and concealing the condition of the bank and receiving deposits, knowing of its insolvency.

Joseph H. Gomila, director and chairman of the finance committee made another trip to the jail and decided to stay rather than furnish $55,000 bail. He is held on six charges, two embezzlement, making false statements and concealing conditions, and three for forgeries of approximately $14,500.

The instrumental music was furnished by Reineke's orchestra.

Suffered With Stomach Trouble and Indigestion for Years

Gas, Heartburn, Heaviness, Sourness and Acidity Quickly Abolished with MI-O-NA Stomach Tablets.

Some stomach remedies are prepared for the sole purpose of giving relief to a distressed stomach.

They do not cure—they simply do the work your stomach itself ought to do and there their usefulness ends.

MI-O-NA stomach tablets give quicker relief than any other stomach remedy, but they do more; they tone up the stomach, put elasticity into the flabby walls, cause the gastric juices to flow normally, and in a short time make the stomach strong enough to digest anything without artificial aid.

Any druggist will supply you with a 50 cent box of MI-O-NA stomach tablets—the real cure for indigestion and instant reliever of stomach misery. Read this letter:

"I feel it my duty to write you about MI-O-NA. I suffered with stomach trouble for three years. I paid a hundred dollars for doctors' bills and medicines. I lived on buttermilk and when I ate my stomach would ache. I doubt if there is any person living who can recommend your MI-O-NA more highly than myself. I had been a great sufferer from stomach troubles for many years. I took half of one box and feel as if I am a new man, and all of my friends speak of it." Daniel Anderson, 220 Jones street, Petersburg, Va., Feb. 11, 1912. Meyer Bros. Co. guarantee it.

INDOOR WORK IS FORCED ON TEAM

Concordia Gym Back in Service to Limber Up the Players.

NEW MEN EXPECTED

Indoor work was forced on Manager Shaughnessy and his baseball squad today by the weather man who sent the players back to Concordia college gym to limber up a bit.

The pitchers were put through their paces and everybody took a turn at basketball and handball, while the pilot figured out some new strategy for his next school of instruction.

Owner Varnell will stay over tomorrow in the hope of getting a peep at his team in action, but there will have to be a lot of sunshine to give him this chance as the ground is wet and unfit for use in practice. He abandoned his trip to Detroit where he expected to go for the opening of the new park at the game scheduled for today.

Don't Like Ceremonies.

Owner Claude H. Varnell is against the upening day ceremonies but he will go through the regulation program here when Dayton meets the Fort Wayne club in the first conflict of 1912.

He is doing this simply because he is afraid people will call him a "cheap skate" and think that by doing away with the parade and other things that go with the first game he is trying to save the price of a brass band and the expense of hauling his players about the streets.

All of the big league clubs have abandoned the idea and Mr. Varnell's principal objection is that the players are carted about, usually in the cold, and when they reach the park they are not in shape to play baseball. Although the arrangements have not been completed it is probable that Fort Wayne will pry open the season here this year in very much the same way it has been pried open for several years.

The parade, band concert and pitching of the first ball by the mayor have become as much a part of the first day of baseball as the bailiff's "hear ye" in opening court and the custom will be repeated here on April 30.

Martin in for Good Year.

Harry Martin is probably in for the best year of his baseball career and, barring injuries, it is practically certain that he will make Fort Wayne one of the best backstops the club has ever had.

In the first place he is an intelligent ball player and even if he does not get back into the majors he knows enough of the game to fall into a good managerial berth in class B, which will be as remunerative as the place of second or third catcher on a big league club.

He has plenty of ability and is not only a good mechanical ball player but is quick witted and able to take care of himself and his team when rapid-fire thinking becomes necessary. These qualifications are bound eventually to land him a good place in the game.

He has never had full opportunity to show his real worth since he joined the Central league, but conditions here are so very different from any under which he has ever worked since he left Kalamazoo that he will have all the chance in the world to show his claims on something better.

Belongs to Claude Varnell.

In the first place his contract belongs absolutely to Claude H. Varnell and no major league owner has any interest in him, not even under an optional agreement to recall him before the close of the season.

Heretofore he has been shunted here and there because until he became thoroughly discouraged and discontented with baseball and was about ready to quit, as he has a good job with the county government at Grand Rapids. His start here will be practically a new one.

He is working for a man who will never stand in the way of his advancement and who will, on the other hand, see that he goes up in baseball if the chance is given him. Martin is in camp and ready to go to work as soon as the weather man gives his consent. He didn't have a good trial with Kansas City because Charlie Carr wanted veterans behind the bat as he must make a showing this season with Kansas City and he was afraid to take a chance on a youngster, although he never looked the man over and didn't know just how good he is.

Teaching the Rules.

Manager Frank Shaughnessy is a firm believer in having his players well up in all departments of the game and as strange as it may seem ball players, as a general rule, know less about the laws governing play than the patrons.

Yesterday afternoon he improved an hour or two in which the men were not able to get any physical exercise by chugging at their brains a little and teaching them the rules and how to apply them.

He wants intelligence in camp and he is trying to develop every faculty of every man under him. As an exponent of the game he is pursuing methods that are bound to bring good results before the season is over and his players will go on the diamond fully equipped for all the emergencies that may arise.

CIRCUS ON OPENING DAY.

Fort Wayne and Dayton Will Have Some Strong Opposition.

Dayton, O., April 18.—When Dayton opens with Fort Wayne here on next Thursday the teams will have strong opposition in a circus that is billed for the afternoon.

Frank Winchell has been ill for several days and his doctor has ordered him to take a long rest. He will probably be ready for the opening.

WOLGAST TO RUN EAST FOR WHILE

Worried About the Farm and Says He Must Begin to Save Money.

CHAMP IS WORRIED

Los Angeles, Cal., April 18.—Ad Wolgast is going to cut short his stay on the coast. The lightweight champion is growing lonesome and wants to make a flying dash to Cadillac to visit his folks and spend a few days with them. He announced here today that he and his wife would leave this city May 5 and hurry home, returning in such time that he will get in at least ten days' training before he faces Joe Rivers in the ring at Vernon on July 4. Ad figures this Mexican out as a tough fellow, but says he needs only ten days to get him into his best condition.

The champion says he has much to look over on his Cadillac farm and that a number of improvements are necessary. Ad does not believe in retirement and wants to get all the coin out of the game that he can. He figures that after the Rivers' battle he can again hit the road for some theatrical work and gather in a lot more of the long green. Incidentally, Ad is giving up part of his daily program to worry because he hasn't earned more money than he now possesses.

Commanding in property, diamonds and real coin something like $138,000, Ad fears a pauper's grave. Ad visited sporting headquarters here today and spoke freely though much peeved.

"Those rainy days gave me the blues," volunteed the champ. "I wrote so many letters today that my arm aches. I couldn't hand you a story if I had to. I haven't got a single idea. Being a champion isn't what it is cracked up to be. I was just thinking today of the money I have squandered. I'm going to save from now on."

From an inside pocket Ad dug up a crumpled envelope with figures scribbled all over its soiled back. "Been trying to find out how I stood financially," he added. "If I was called on for a showdown today here is my hand."

Here are Wolgast's own figures:

Cash on hand in Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco banks	$ 90,000
Value of Cadillac farm property	17,000
Diamonds	10,000
Four houses at Venice	15,500
Two automobiles	5,000
Total	$187,500

AMERICANS ARE CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS IN OLYMPIC GAMES TO BE HELD IN SWEDEN

STADIUM BUILDING AT STOCKHOLM

The Stadium Building at Stockholm, Sweden, is already prepared for the great Olympic games, to be held there in June. The American entries are confident of making a successful showing in all of the events, and with a fair break of luck it is expected that Uncle Sam's boys will show their heels to their foreign cousins, as they have often done before.

CRAVEN HAS NOT LANDED A PLACE

Two Outfielders Are Gone—His Chances Are Better Than They Were.

HAS EIGHTEEN MEN

Notre Dame, Ind., April 18.—The semi-final reduction of the Black Stocking squad took place today, when Manager Ed Smith announced the release of Dunlap and Harmeyer, outfielders, who have been putting up a game fight for regular berths. One more cut, which will probably not be made until the eve of the season's opening, will reduce the band of Black Stockings to the league limit of fifteen players.

By the elimination of the pair of gardeners Smith has made his task of picking the regular squad comparatively easy. Eighteen men are now in the race for positions. The number includes Holmes, Scanlon and Weeks, catchers; Essick, Meyers, Martin, Lindsay, Bowman and Manager Smith, pitchers; Schmick, Koehler, Hadley, Barkwell and Parker, infielders, and Craves, Kroy and Lejeune and Thomas, outfielders. Of these, two catchers, five pitchers, the regular infielders and outfielders and one utility man will wear the black hose on the opening date.

Dunlap and Harmeyer put up a strong brand of competition for places, but the fight waged by the veterans is just as keen and weighty deliberation decided the boss in the choice of his known friends. A delay in reporting put Harmeyer under a handicap. Dunlap delivered the popular brand of baseball in the practice games, but his youth worked against him and Smith was not unwilling to let his pupil accept a flattering offer from one of the Chicago semi-pro teams when the youngster put the matter up to him a few days ago.

Scanlon, Schmick and Koehler are the only members of the squad who are not in perfect health. The injuries to the latter two are not at all serious and either one could jump into the game at once if the occasion demanded his presence. Schmick suffered a bruised ankle in one of the practice games several days ago, while Koehler's injury lies in a weakened hand obtained when the second baseman incautiously stopped a hard liner with his unprotected palm. Weak ankles are also bothering Koehler, and a course of training prescribed by the Notre Dame track coach, consisting mainly of long jaunts around the university grounds, is expected to renew the strength of the joints.

At least a week will elapse before Scanlon is able to get into harness. The backstopper is still hobbling around on crutches and daily treatments by the doctor will be the schedule for several days longer. The layoff will insure Weeks' retention on the squad until after the opening of the season at least, unless the healing process is completed sooner than the physicians anticipate.

SOLVED BIG PROBLEM.

ROGERS TO STAY IN PITCHING BOX

Will Not Play First Base or the Outfield for Zanesville Team.

BALKS ON HURLING

Zanesville, O., April 18.—Ed "Lefty" Rogers will not be first baseman or an outfielder on the Zanesville club this season unless the manager has a change of heart.

He says he will not pitch because he has no future before him in the box while he can hit and field good enough to earn some recognition and he wants the advancement that generally comes to a hard hitting player.

Manager Kelly, on the other hand, says that Rogers is needed for the pitching staff and that he will be one of the members of the hurling squad when the club takes the road. He is balking on the proposition but will probably change his mind when the time comes.

Every effort is being made to have opening day here a half holiday and members of the baseball company are circulating among the merchants and manufacturers requesting them to sign an agreement to close down and give their employes a chance to attend the game. This will be Zanesville's last season in class B ball unless the patrons show they are able to maintain a team in better shape than they have in former years.

The Central league agreement will expire after the present season and new territory will be taken on if any can be found that is desirable and if the twelve-club proposition proves a failure eight of the best towns will be in the circuit next season.

In order to maintain the class of ball that patrons have had for the last three years it will be necessary to create interest and get the masses out and for that reason the other clubs will demand that some sort of crowds turn out during the week. Merchants and manufacturers are endeavoring to stimulate this interest.

Tommy Dugger has accepted terms with the Battle Creek, Mich., club of the Southern Michigan league. He will play in the outfield or third base.

Johnny Jones has wired the Terre Haute management inquiring about his transportation. It has not arrived yet.

Garden sites are scarce. Haven acre addition is the very best of soil and on the Lima interurban. Only four tracts left for sale. Louis F. Curdes. Phone 622.

FOUGHT KILBANE AND GOT A DRAW

Young Joe Grimm Met the Champion When Both Were Younger.

HAS A LONG RECORD

Young Joe Grimm, one of the principals in the main event carded by the Summit City Athletic club at the Princess rink Friday night, has been in the boxing game for a number of years, and while he was fighting his way up the pugilistic ladder he met Johnny Kilbane and battled him to a draw at Youngstown.

Grimm was younger at that time and able to make the featherweight, and while Kilbane kept within the limit until he won the championship of his class, he was no better boy at the time he met Grimm than Grimm was and had the latter managed to avoid taking on flesh he might be wearing the spangles now that are worn by the new champ.

Grimm began fighting in 1905 when he was very young, and he has been steadily in the game since. While he has not climbed as rapidly as some of the men who entered the ring at the same time he has always been in demand and in the territory around his home at Pittsburg he has been able to get good engagements.

He has a record of sixty-eight battles and in only one of them has the decision been given against him. His last was a fifteen-round draw with Jack Lepper at Dayton on March 1. He has never been knocked out in his career and he has never hesitated to take on the best boys in his class.

Most of his ring engagements have taken place in and around Pittsburg and Cleveland where he has had some very favorable press notice.

In Battling Conners he will meet a lad who will give him a run for his money if accounts received here can be relied upon. In selecting the men the club has endeavored to get two who are equally matched. Seats have been reserved by a number of Payne fans who are coming over to see Hal Stewart stacked up against a real fighter. He had no chance to show here before.

DRIVES MAN TO SUICIDE.

Reading Account of Titanic Disaster Added to His Despondency.

Hazleton, Ind., April 18.—Shortly after a newspaper account of the Titanic disaster had been read to him yesterday, Andrew Nolting, a prominent farmer near here, committed suicide. He had been in ill health for some time, his despondency deepening when the report of the steamer's sinking reached him.

Brocton, Mass., April 18.—Miss Katherine E. Maguire, 50, heartbroken by the news that her nephew, John E. Maguire, was among those probably lost on the Titanic, was taken violently ill last night and died within a few minutes. She had been in the best of health but the shock was more than she could bear.

SHARKEY'S HORSE FELL IN STRECH

Chicago, Ill., April 18.—Tom Sharkey, the tattooed terror of the roped square, had sworn off patronizing the bookmakers. In fact, Tom wouldn't even take a chance with the dollar book—but he did like horses.

There's many a booby walking pavions on his feet just because he "did like horses," and while Thomas didn't have to walk he at least had the satisfaction of seeing the other fellow run.

A number of sports were chatting in Considine's place in New York about the time when Tom was in his prime—and was working three shifts as hope spoiler.

This is the way Tom told it:

"I just run down t' Sheepshead Bay, y'know, to see de ponies. On de level, I wouldn't have placed a two-bit piece on a streak o' lightnin', I was so sore at de game. But, believe me, kid, I allus did admire horseflesh—especially about de time de bugle sounds out near de paddock.

"I was standin' up in the gran'stand, watchin' de flash of color and feelin' de blood race through me veins, when dey comes a gentle tappin' on me right fin. I slants down an' who is it but a shrimp guy, wit' 'maculate gloves. Gee! dem was sporty gloves—sort o' peli gray.

"'An' he says, says he, 'Mister Sharkey, I've gotta sreed t'ing—a cinch. Say, my horse can walk in ahead of de field—absolutely walk in, and not s'much as breathe hard. I wouldn't tip you wise, Mister Sharkey, but I'm a vast admirer of youse and I want you in wit' me. Are you on?'

"I sizes him up carefully and says: 'Sure, kid, and here's a century note. Only you must send it down to the bookie. Because youse must stay here—and if your horse don't walk in like you say, then, believe me kiddo, 'espite them 'maculate gloves, youse'll get a hundred-bone punch.'

"He was serious afterwards—but game. Leastwise, he sticks, and foize t'ing we knows our race was on, wit' de horses a-prancin' outta de paddock. Crack! And de's off, wit' a dust cloud markin' th' spot where they wunst stands. Did they go? Oh, mommer, did they go? And our horse was in the lead—walkin' ahead o' the field, like de guy wit' de 'maculate gloves says. And on the stretch, kid, s'help me, our good t'ing stumbles and falls—and stays there, wit' the final sailing horse passin' him. And I doubles up me dukes and prepares for de woist swipe in me career, when I sees the shrimp-kid floatin' t'rough de gran'stand. And whatta you suppose? His polve was gone complete. And as he beat it better'n any jackrabbit what ever disgraced the Dakotas, he keppa hollerin': Meicy! Meicy me! is dey a physician present? Help! Bring a doctor! And on de square, to this day he's still runnin', expectin' a hundred-dollar poke! And all the time me that astonished that a cripple from the old folkses' home could stood me off for at least t'ree rounds!"

YOUNGEST MAYOR WON GOOD FIGHT

How J. F. Sullivan Triumphed Over His Adversary in South.

HE IS A PARALYTIC

Little Rock, Ark., April 18.—"For myself, I'm going to use three essentials for success, faith, prayer and preseverance. They never fail you if you are in the right, and you are already a failure if you are in the wrong."

This is the nutshell philosophy of Hon. Joe F. Sullivan, recently elected mayor of Imboden, the youngest mayor in the United States. His election was a most exciting one, and more votes were polled than in any previous contest in the progressive village of 500 population. Joe is not quite 21 years old, and is a cripple, but this did not deter him.

"Misfortune?" he repeated when asked if that was not a handicap. "There's no such word as that for me. What you call misfortune is what I call fortune. My afflictions make me what I am, and will help to make me what I am to be. I'm perfectly conciled to my condition, and never think of being blue or worrying lover what can't be helped. Really I haven't time to waste in that manner; there is too much for me to do. No whimpering in mine."

The boy mayor of Arkansas, the boy editor, and known at home as "the boy with the billy goats," is not yet grown, and is a paralytic. At the age of four he was stricken with paralysis, which deprived him of the use of his left arm and both legs. In all these years he has never stood on his feet or taken a step. His only way of getting about is by driving a team of trained Angora goats, which have been to him for five years what feet are to those who walk. They follow him about like dogs, lie on the porch by his chair till he is ready to move. Bill and Jim are as well known in the little city as their master.

Became An Editor.

Joe was ambitious. Five years ago he decided upon journalism as his life's work and after frequent disappointments, finally "made good," is now correspondent for numerous peapers, is editor of the Imboden Gazette, and a writer of short stories that have been widely published. He took up politics, and his articles on the political situation in his county attracted attention. The most prominent men of the county advised him to offer for some county office two years ago, and he would have done so had he not been attacked with typhoid fever last winter. After recovery it was too late to enter county politics, and upon the advice of friends, although two prominent and aged business men had already announced, Joe decided to make the race for mayor.

He drove his goat cart down the main street and told the business men that he was a candidate. Many believed him in earnest, but the majority only laughed at him, knowing that he lacked three months of being 21 years old. When he saw that his candidacy was being taken as a huge joke, Joe's Irish blood boiled in his veins, and he determined to convince them of his earnestness.

Novel Campaign.

He appointed twelve school girls, less than 16 years old, with whom he had attended school, as his campaign managers, and they tacked up posters and distributed circulars announcing a date on which he would address the voters. On Wednesday night preceding the election on Tuesday a large crowd assembled at the city hall, largely through curiosity, and for an hour he held their attention by his forceful address. The tide was changed, his candidacy was no longer a joke. He was a real candidate, although not full grown. The following day friends of his opponents tried to persuade him to withdraw from the race, but he resolutely refused. Then they tried to frighten him, but failed. Then they set about defeating him at the polls. But when the election day came Joe and his friends and his girl campaign managers were still busy. When the polls closed that night "the boy with the billy goats" had defeated both opponents, having received more votes than the other two combined, and Imboden was placed on the map as the only city in the world with a legally elected mayor under 21 years of age. A schoolmate, too, only 21 years old, was elected city treasurer. Every candidate for any office who opposed Sullivan was defeated.

This interprid young American has achieved wonders during his short but eventful career. Six years ago his father died, and Joe, helpless, was left in the care of an aged and feeble mother. At that time he had advanced to only the fourth grade in school, and the future would have been dark and forbidding to one less optimistic. Realizing that he must be prepared to meet the adversities of life, he set about self-instruction at home, and all winter studied, hoped and prayed, and the spring of 1907 brought food and encouraging hopes to Joe. He conceived the idea of buying and training a goat team to go to and from school, a mile from his humble cottage home. His plan proved practicable and again he entered school. The father had left them an unmortgaged home and a few dollars so that they were not destitute. He paid his last $5 bill for the goats, and with the assistance of his boy friends soon trained them to draw him about.

Triumph Over Adversity.

But adversity still followed his footsteps. With the coming of summer one goat died from heat and overwork, and the other ran away and demolished a new wagon. But another goat was bought and the ambitious youth was ready for school again in the fall. Although five years behind his class, unable to walk a step or use more than his right hand, and weighing but 95 pounds, he burned the midnight oil all that winter. The following spring he finished the term, leader of his class, winner of a gold medal for making the highest grades, and weighing but 75 pounds.

During vacation he became agent for some daily papers and for a coffee house, earning a few dollars. The second year in school he graduated from the grammar grade, winning another medal and a diploma of merit by the state superintendent for writing a composition in a state contest in which more than 300 pupils over the state participated. He entered high school in 1909. About this time the inspiration seized him to write and he began by sending articles to metropolitan papers, but at first met only with disappointment, until finally his communications were accepted. He was appointed regular correspondent by several dailies, and his career as a journalist was firmly established. He is now able to give his aged mother some of the small luxuries as well as the necessities of life, and deposit a few dollars now and then in a savings bank, with which he expects to pay his way through college.

FOUR FAINT AT FUNERAL.

Quartet of Women Overcome During Service at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, April 18.—Four women fainted yesterday during the funeral services over the body of Herman A. Johnson, who was killed Monday by the collapse of a new building. Mrs. Johnson, the widow, fainted just as the services were begun and before she had regained consciousness Mrs. Eliza Johnson, the dead man's mother, and her daughter, Mrs. Anna McNabney, of Terre Haute, both swooned. In the confusion Mrs. William Rogers, an attendant, also fainted. Physicians from the city dispensary were called to attend the women.

Hint "Sweatnomore."

Just hint "Sweatnomore" to your friend with the sweating, foul-smelling feet. He's intolerable when in your company, but he can't help it. He suffers more than you do; he keeps his feet clean and changes hose daily, but that don't stop excessive sweating feet. Pity him and throw him a hint. Sweatnomore is a powder differing in purpose from any other foot remedy.

It was originated for just one purpose—to stop excessive sweating feet and destroy the terrible odor. It does it every time absolutely. Incidentally it gives other relief, too. Removes tiredness of feet, stops aching and helps relieve soft corns. But the sweating is what you want cured. "Sweatnomore" restores normal, healthy conditions. Sold by your druggist, or he can readily get it from the wholesale firms.

HOW EXPERTS FORM OPINIONS

Distinguishing Marks May Be Forged, but the Man Who Knows Cannot Be Deceived.

A dealer in antiques was talking about art experts. "Take, for instance," he said, "an expert in old pewter. You think, perhaps, he distinguishes old pewter by the marks—the Tudor roses, the maker's name, and so forth? Bless your heart, those marks are continually forged. No, he distinguishes old pewter by the feel.

"It is like the china expert. He, with his eyes closed, will distinguish hard and soft paste china. It's the feel again—his fingers trained by years and years of study till each one has a brain in it.

"Oriental rug experts have a very subtle sense of rug differences. Sometimes they distinguish a rug by its smell—the smell of the wool and the dyes. This seems incredible till you think of the Harris tweed, that imported cloth that you yourself can distinguish by its smell—the smell, which never leaves it, of the peat smoke of the cottage wherein it was woven on a hand loom.

"Wool sorters, a less highly paid class of experts, can take up a handful of wool, and by its color tell you whether it came from Texas, from the territories, from England or from Canada. The soil, you see, gives its own color to the wool."

About a Pair of "Pants."

A Detroit man, who had contributed a bundle of his cast-off clothing for the relief of the victims of a fire, received from one of the sufferers the following note: "The committy man giv me amungst other things wat he called a pare of pants, and 'twould make me pant some to ware 'em. I found your name and where you live on one of the pokits. My wife laffed so when I shode 'em to her that I thot she wood have a conipahun fit. She wants to no if there lives and brethes a man who has legs no bigger than that. She sed if there was he orter be taken up for vagrancy for havin' no visible means of support. I could-sent get 'em on my oldest boy, so I used 'em for gun cases. If you hav another pare to spare, my wife would like to get 'em to hang up by the side of the fireplace to keep the tongs in." —Spofford's Library of Wit and Humor.

My Rest Cure.

Commit it to memory or paste it up where your eye will often rest upon it. Apply it daily as often as practicable; make it a part of your daily thought, and, my word for it, that tired feeling will vanish and you will know it no more forever. Your heart, your home, your life will be full of sunshine.

Relax mind and body.
Ease up on every nerve and muscle.
Shut out all unpleasantness.
Throw care to the winds.

If you become tired when reading, writing or in the pursuance of anything requiring mental effort; if the mind seems to lose its activity for a time, its quickness of perception, its power of concentration, it, too, needs a rest or change of activity. The brain not being a muscular organ, must rely upon bodily activity to draw away the blood that has been used and make room for new.—Los Angeles Times.

KIDNEY TROUBLES
CAN BE AVOIDED.

You cannot afford to neglect the slightest kidney ailment—it's hazardous to do so.

That's why neglect means trouble—the ailment becomes chronic and results in Rheumatism or Bright's Disease.

WILL BID FOR CONVENTION

Fort Wayne Delegates of Iron Workers Want 1913 Meet.

FORTY-NINE YEARS IN WABASH SHOP

Remarkable Record Established by Machinist W. H. Knoll.

The Fort Wayne delegation to the annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, which will be held in Chicago in May, will go there prepared to make a strong bid for the 1913 convention to be held in Fort Wayne. In this the delegates will receive all possible aid from the Commercial club, the business men of the city and the Federation of Labor. Several hundred delegates attend the conventions of the iron workers and they are as a rule accompanied by their wives and other members of their families. The meetings extend over a period of a week or more and the benefits to the commercial, hotel and other interests of the convention city are such as to create a desire for the honor of entertaining the delegates and a stiff fight will be made for it.

FIRST TRAIN IN BUCYRUS

Was a Combination Passenger and Freight.

In a recent issue of the Bucyrus Evening Telegram appeared a very interesting illustrated article concerning the first train running in and out of that city, the man who built a part of the line which is now the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Western road and the Pennsylvania Special, commonly called the "eighteen-hour flyer." The writer refers to the first train as the "great, great granddaddy of the Pennsylvania eighteen hour train," and the illustrations show it to have consisted of a cabless engine which weighed about ten tons, a tender that would accommodate a cord of wood, a box car which might carry three or four tons and two diminutive coaches with fourteen single seats on each side and with a capacity for carrying twenty-eight people. This train made its first appearance in Bucyrus, carrying a delegation of Pittsburg manufacturers and business men, on August 30, 1853. A month later a regular daily, except Sunday, service was established between Bucyrus and Crestline, a distance of twelve miles. A bulletin issued September 29, 1853, and bearing the signature of Lester Bliss, superintendent, made the announcement that this train would make a round trip each day and cover the twelve miles in one hour; would carry both passengers and freight and that "persons desiring to send freight by this line must have the same delivered an hour before the departure of the train." The road at Bucyrus was known as the Ohio and Indiana, being a continuation of the Pennsylvania and Ohio road, which extended from Pittsburg to Crestline. It was completed in 1853 only to Bucyrus, but two years later it was extended to Chicago and the three sections were consolidated into the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago road. Jesse R. Straughn, the civil engineer, under whose direction much of the line was built, resided in Fort Wayne many years after the completion of the road. His portrait is one of the illustrations used by the Telegram.

FORTY-NINE YEARS IN SHOPS.

William H. Knoll Never Had But One Employer.

Few men have worked forty-nine years for one employer, but that is the record established by William H. Knoll. When only eighteen years old Mr. Knoll became an apprentice in the Wabash machine shop and he is still employed in those shops when he is able to work. He never had another employer and declares that he does not want to nor expect to have another. Mr. Knoll has been very sick for several weeks and for a while it seemed that he could not recover. He is improving, however, and gives promise of complete recovery.

NO DEPOT IN WEST END.

G. R. & I. Will Not Build This Season.

The rumor in circulation that the G. R. & I. company has in contemplation the establishment of a sub-station in the western part of the city to handle the excursion business in and out of Fort Wayne to Rome City does not seem to be founded on facts. When asked about it, Supt. B. H. Hudson said that he had heard nothing from an official source concerning such a project. "We have no available grounds for a depot out there," said Mr. Hudson. According to the rumor, the depot would be used only to handle the summer excursion business and then only on Sundays and holidays.

OLD RAILROADER IS DEAD.

A. M. Hopkins, a former general manager of the Wabash railway in the days when it was the Toledo, Wabash & Western road, died last week at his home at Boston, Mass., at the age of 78 years. He was at the head of the operating department of the Wabash road from 1876 to 1879 and later occupied a high position when the road was known as the Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific railway.

MAY CHANGE THE BY-LAWS.

The Wabash Relief union, which will be a year old in June, may make some changes in its constitution and by-laws at the end of the fiscal year. While the relief union has been financially and numerically successful during the ten months of its existence, the experience obtained has revealed some defects in the by-laws which it is desirable to eliminate. The committee on constitution and by-laws are J. W. Loney, of the pipefitters, chairman; Ben Singleton, of the machinists; Ed Wefel, of the boilermakers; W. Scherer, of the carpenters; N. Weaver, of the blacksmiths.

CALLED TO BETTER JOB.

Edward Davis Building Inspector for Big Concern.

Edward Davis has resigned as a dynamo tester in the Fort Wayne Electric works and has taken employment as a building construction inspector for one of the largest architect and contracting companies in Chicago. Mr. Davis was a member of the 1910 graduating class of Purdue university and has a number of university friends in this city. He is also quite well known at the Lights and in social circles. Immediately following his graduation from Purdue, Mr. Davis took employment in the Westinghouse factory in Pittsburg, but remained there only a short time, when he resigned to come to the Fort Wayne Electric works.

ENGINEER DONAHUE HURT.

The Bellevue Gazette published the following about one of Fort Wayne's best known engineers: "Nickel Plate Engineer Pat Donahue, of Fort Wayne, received a painful injury in the local yards of the company Tuesday. Engineer Donahue was assisting workmen in placing a car door in position, when the heavy door slipped and fell, striking the engineer on the left hand and tearing the flesh of the first finger of the right hand badly. The injured man was able to take his run out of this city later, but upon his arrival at Fort Wayne it was necessary to have the injury dressed by a physician."

WON'T BUILD TO DETROIT.

The Pennsylvania has declined with thanks, the invitation extended to it by the commercial bodies of Detroit, to extend its lines from Toledo into the city. Its alleged reason was twofold. First, it objected to the rate of taxation, which, it is asserted, it regarded as excessive and much too burdensome for a transportation company in these days of high cost of operation and low rates for freight; second, the attitude of the state railroad commission toward corporate financing as demonstrated recently in the case of the Pere Marquette road, did not impress it favorably.

WILL HIRE 100 MEN.

The Moellering Construction company, which has been the successful bidder on a number of improvements, including the excavation and foundation for the Mayflower Mills, at the junction of the Nickel Plate and the G. R. & I. tracks, announce that they will soon be in the market for 100 or more laborers and concrete workers. As soon as weather conditions are favorable a number of other outdoor improvements will be taken up and laborers will be in great demand.

FINISHED THEIR WORK.

The division storekeepers of the Pennsylvania Northwest system, who held a three days' meeting in this city, finished their work last night and some of the men left last night and the others this morning for their respective homes. C. P. Cherry, storekeeper of the Western division, presided at the meeting.

HIRED NINE MORE MEN.

Still the force in the Wabash shops increases. This morning the following men found employment there: J. F. Nussbaum, Charles Briggs, S. D. Mooney, J. Weidemann, Wilber J. Pulver, J. B. Cashin, B. E. Kinney, Alfred S. Heft and Frank R. Tibbles. This list brings the number of men hired since April 1 up to 121, the largest number of additional men given employment in an equal time by any establishment in Fort Wayne.

CHANGE IN YARD CLERKS.

Night Yard Clerk Ben Romy resigned his position with the Wabash yesterday and will take other employment. The young man is a son of Night Yardmaster Romy, of the Wabash. He has been succeeded by Arthur Helmke, who resigned the position of night bill clerk at the Wabash freight office some time ago.

TRACK BLOCKED THREE HOURS.

The delay to the Wabash passenger trains yesterday morning was caused by an accident to a freight train at New Haven. Fast freight train No. 97 had the trucks of a freight car derailed in such a manner that the train crew was unable to handle it and assistance had to be called.

"SWAN SONG" IN TRAGIC KEY.

Violinist Who Outdid Himself Found Suicide in Closet.

New York, April 18.—There was no music in the restaurant on the ground floor of No. 330 Fulton street, Brooklyn, at noon, where for years Arthur Thomason, a violinist, has displayed his skill between 12 and 1 o'clock, nor was the violinist in the restaurant the day before.

His absence was remarked, and then guests commented on the fact that Thomason had played the "Swan Song" in most effective style the day before that. The musician never had been absent all the years he played at the restaurant.

A waiter was sent to his small factory on the floor above the restaurant and found his body in a closet, which was filled with gas. He was sitting on a chair, and across his lap was his favorite violin.

The police say Thomason, who was 50 years old, committed suicide. His brother told the police that Arthur had been very unhappy for two months because his wife left him.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $2 and Fully Guaranteed.

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you.

No Need Being Old or Wrinkled Before 75

Lillian Russell says any woman who has wrinkles before she's 75 is herself responsible for them. Sunshine and fresh air she considers more valuable as complexion preservers than nostrums and cosmetics.

The chief objection to cosmetics is that at best they only temporarily cover up defects. There are certain true aids to Nature which may be applied with directly opposite effect. Ordinary mercolized wax for instance, actually removes a bad or oldish complexion, by gradually, almost imperceptibly, peeling off the worn-out scarf skin. Just one ounce, procurable at any drug store, will soon unveil an entirely new and natural complexion, with an exquisite girlish color. Of course cutaneous blemishes like pimples, freckles, fine lines, moth patches, liver spots disappear with the discarded skin.

To prevent or remove wrinkles, a face bath which also produces natural results is made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. It's wonderfully effective.

HOW IT FEELS TO FACE REBEL GUN

Mining Man Who Left the Country Tells His Experience in Mexico.

WAS OFTEN ROBBED

San Antonio, Tex., April 17.—After having been held up a score of times and threatened with death if all the money and the arms in his possession were not delivered into the hands of bandits of rebels, Charles McCord Purdy, former cashier of the American Smelting and Refining company at Velardena, in the state of Durango, has just been here on his way back to his home in New York. He is through with Mexico at least for the time being. What will eventually result in that community is something Mr. Purdy says can not be predicted. Should Torreon fall it will mean that many lives of foreigners are likely to be endangered. The woman and children, for the greater part, have left Velardena. Three times the Americans there were warned by American consular to quit the place, seek safety in some of the larger cities or else return to the United States.

"Personally," said Mr. Purdy at the St. Anthony hotel, "I wanted to remain in Mexico in face of even the terrible conditions that prevail. But if you had a wife living in New York, and each day the man brought a letter imploring you to come home, what would you do? And then, I want to say in passing, that any foreigner who lives or has lived in Velardena and gone through some of the outrages there and tells you he was not scared at one time or another just hasn't got sense to be scared when he ought to be, or else he is a fool.

Some Americans Marked.

"There are today in that town a number of men the bandits or rebels, whatever they might be, have marked. These men include a half dozen or more Americans who were seen at one time or another with weapons, or are believed to have been some of the men who helped to slay five of the bandits that one day rode in and attempted to make away with money and other valuables.

"Suppose you were there, a number of bandits rode in and told you to make a donation? They might use persuasion in the way of a large sword with a razor edge on one side and filed like a saw on the other. The needle point of that might be prodding against your abdomen and at your head bristled the muzzles of three or four rifles. They told you to donate, and shell out what guns you had. What would you do? Probably would do what I did. Shell out. In and about Velardina three bandits robbed the company in various sums, ranging from $41 to $10,000.

"As a general thing, these bandits were cowards. For an hour or so one day I told them to shoot me in my office. They wouldn't do it. They wanted me to step outside of the office to kill me as they said if I did not give them a gun in addition to money, I was lying to them. I had a gun and I had to make good in my story. Finally they rode away without the gun, but they made a young man in the office, just a boy, named Gustavo, step out into the corral and they had not been there for a minute or so before we heard some shots.

Forced to Give Dance.

"'They've finished Gustavo,' I said to the superintendent, who was in the office with me, and possibly a minute or so thereafter we heard other shots. Then I was certain they had killed the boy. We waited until we could see the band riding down the road. Then we started out to where we believed we would find Gustavo's body. We had gone possibly a hundred feet from the office when one of the rebels wheeled his horse on the animal's hind legs.

"'They're coming back, let's beat it,' I yelled to the superintendent and we doubled back, passing near my house, and then entered one of the mines. We went down to the ninth level in the workings. That might have been a thousand feet down. We remained there until late in the afternoon when one of the men came down and said it was raining on top. It was getting dark as we went up to sleep. The rebels were still in town and they decided to give a dance. They went around to the various houses, commanding the women to appear at the dance.

"That's one of the incidents of the conditions in and about Velardena. We had heard several times that the bands of rebels, as they called themselves, were coming to clean out Velardena. There was one band of 150 of them that telephoned over one day they would come to take the town and the Americans there who had resolved to fight to the last ditch or until the last cartridge was gone told them to come on.

"There were preparations to repulse the assault, and while we were waiting one of the engineers with a level on the side of a hill saw a train approaching. Because of the heat waves he could not tell whether it was a freight, passenger or troop train. After a while the train came in, and on it were some federal soldiers. They were armed with rifles. When the so-called rebels heard of the coming of the troop train they scattered to the winds, just where, we never did find out.

"That is another incident to give you an idea of just how comfortable we were down there. It isn't a joke to have a brown-skinned man, his feet partially incased in sandals, who can neither write his name nor count money, shove a great big pistol in your face and tell you to make a donation. You just have got to do it, for the first American who starts something will himself be quickly finished or else be a long time in finishing what he has started."

Noted Preacher is a Titanic Victim.

Rev. John Harper, of London, a Titanic passenger believed to have perished, was coming to America to speak in several large cities. He was a noted Baptist divine. His wife and daughter are reported rescued.

Defiant.

"There is a place awaiting you in the abode of future punishment," said the man who, even though angry, strives to be discreet of speech.

"It don't scare me none," replied the janitor. "I'll be kind o' glad to get some place where the tenants never complain because the radiators are cold."

NOT HER FIRST APPEARANCE

Well Meaning Church Woman Unfortunate in Extending Welcome, as Pastor Had Counseled.

It is embarrassing sometimes, this thing of sudden religious zeal; that is, if you haven't made it a regular business. Witness the mistake made some time ago by a good woman who was a regular attendant at a church down on Chestnut street, says the Louisville Times.

One Sunday morning her pastor preached an inspiring sermon on the subject of welcoming the "Stranger Within Thy Gates." He urged upon his membership the duty of giving a cordial greeting to strangers who happened in at that church.

This good woman was much impressed with his remarks. As she turned around to leave the church, she discovered an unfamiliar face in the pew immediately behind her. With a radiant smile she extended her hand. "I'm glad to see you out this morning," she said.

"Thank you," replied the stranger with a merry twinkle in her eyes.

"Do you come often?" sweetly asked the good woman.

The stranger smiled. "I have been occupying this pew for the past seven years," she said.

There was an embarrassed silence, and then the good woman turned and started out. It was noticeable that she made no further attempt to greet any stranger that morning.

WORLD'S MOST NOTED ECHOES

Some Reproduce Sound in Melodious Manner, Others With an Effect That Is Terrifying.

Probably the finest echo which the world knows is in the cathedral at Pisa, where the Leaning Tower is. Sing two notes and there is no reverberation; sing three and they are at once taken up by the walls of the edifice, swelled, prolonged and varied, till they seem as a divine harmony from some majestic organ.

There is a cavern in Finland in which, if you test your lungs to the top of their capacity, there will answer you such horrible roarings, moanings and mutterings that you will be glad to rush out in absolute terror.

The cutting down of trees in a certain locality on the Hudson river spoilt a splendid echo. A word shouted there was repeated 42 times.

Undoubtedly the most extraordinary natural echo in the world is to be heard by the side of a small lake in Bavaria. On one hand rises a perpendicular cliff several thousand feet high, while on the other side is a dense forest. If a pistol is fired on the lake the woods send back a faint echo that gradually dies away, but presently it is heard from the cliff, continually increasing in power, till it bursts over one's head like a deafening peal of thunder.

John M. Schenck, Fountaintown, Ind., recommends Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. He says, "I was troubled with asthma about four years, so bad I could not sleep. I took everything I heard of for asthma and doctored also, but got no relief until I tried Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It helped me from the first dose, and the continued use cured me. It is now a long time since I was cured, and I have no symptoms of a return of the disease."

PUPILS KNOW GRAND OPERA

TAKES WIDE RANGE

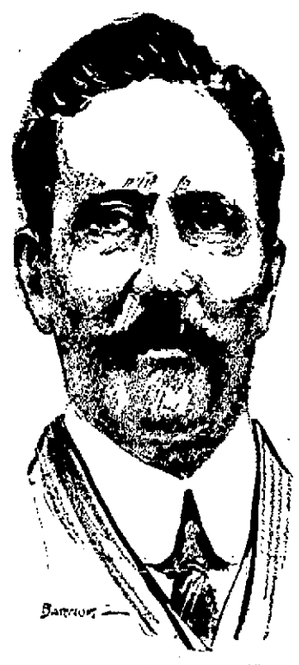
Washington, D. C., April 18.—As a result of the instruction in music given in the public schools of St. Louis, each graduate of the high schools of that city is familiar with fifty grand opera choruses or selections from oratorios, in addition to a wide range of less pretentious songs of merit. This work, which is observed with interest by officials of the United States bureau of education, has been carried on in its present form for five years. In the course of this time a great chorus of 2,500 St. Louis school children, accompanied by the Damrosch Symphony orchestra, sang with great success selections from classical compositions and music of the highest character. Several orchestra-choral concerts have been given jointly with the St. Louis Symphony orchestra, the vocal pieces being divided equally among three choruses of about 400 children each. Among the composers represented in the repertoire of the St. Louis school children were Wagner, Offenbach, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Gounod, Verdi, Grieg and Costa.

The supervisor of music instruction in the St. Louis public schools said: "As early as the seventh grade children are given selections from the easier arrangements of oratorios and grand operas, and from music of a like character, and training in such choruses is continued through the high school. In this way we inculcate a love and understanding of classical music with such good effect that among the 80,000 school children of St. Louis there are few advanced pupils who would not much rather sing fine music than rag-time. However, we shall not be satisfied till the children are brought to the point where they will understand and enjoy symphony music, a training in which is very nearly the ultima Thule of the music lover's education. At the present rate of progress the children ought to reach this stage of music culture in five years."

"Any child can be taught to sing," said Mr. E. L. Coburn, supervisor of music, "if the teacher will simply play or sing the strain often enough in company with him. That is the basic principle on which we work—the child is started to singing by singing to him, not by making him learn the scale. In the end, technique comes to him easily, almost unconsciously, with the result that the new method of teaching singing by singing actually develops more sight-readers of music than did the old method of teaching singing by practising the scale."

"The work which is being done in music in the St. Louis schools may be regarded as of wide importance," said James C. Boykin, the editor of the United States Bureau of Education, yesterday, "by reason of the fact that it is a conspicuous example of the truth that the potential musical ability of the American people is practically as great as is that of any other nation, requiring nothing more than training to bring it out. The absence of a general forward movement in musical education among the schools of this country has been a matter of concern to this bureau, which therefore welcomes all the more cordially the excellent work done in the St. Louis schools. That the arts directed to the ear make a deeper emotional appeal than do those directed solely to the eye can hardly be questioned, and there is no disputing the conclusion that our children must be trained to love music, to crave it, and to produce it, if they are to arrive at a fully rounded maturity."

Managing Director White Star Line and His Wife—Both Survive Disaster.



JOSEPH BRUCE ISMAY.

MRS. J. BRUCE ISMAY.

Joseph Bruce Ismay, of Liverpool, chairman and managing director of the White Star line, and president of the International Mercantile Marine Co., and who escaped from the wrecked White Star liner Titanic, although hundreds of other men and many women and children were drowned, was born in Liverpool, Dec. 12, 1862.

His father, Thomas Henry Ismay, who was the greatest of British shipowners of his time, took over the White Star line of Australian clippers in 1867, and three years later built the Oceanic, 3807 tons, at Belfast, and put her in commission between Liverpool and New York, the first White Star steamship to ply between those two ports. With William Imrie as a partner he made the White Star line one of the greatest in the world. He retired in 1902, and was succeeded by his oldest son, Joseph Bruce Ismay. The latter was married to Julia Florence, daughter of George B. Schieffelin, of New York. They have four children, two sons and two daughters.

On the official passenger list as originally given out, Mrs. Ismay was given as having sailed with her husband. In no subsequent list given out by the company has Mrs. Ismay's name appeared either as a victim or a survivor.

Mrs. Ismay has lived in England many years and is one of the great society leaders. She is a New Yorker born and her maiden name was Florence Schieffelin, daughter of a big New York banker.

With the Ismays, the original sailing list showed, were a maid and a man servant.

DOLLIES FROM MANY NATIONS

Mary Catherine Burnett's Family at Present Numbers Twenty-Seven.

AUNT SENDS THEM

Kansas City, April 18.—Mary Catherine Burnett, 6 years old, has twenty-seven dolls that have been sent to her from all parts of the world by her aunt, Mrs. Hugh McGowan, of Indianapolis, whose husband, formerly a Kansas City traction official, died recently. Mary Catherine lives with another aunt, Mrs. J. C. Wirthman, at 3102 Troost avenue.

Mrs. McGowan finds great pleasure in travel, and has visited nearly every nook and cranny of the old world. She has been sending a doll from every country she has visited.

So Mary Catherine is the proud owner of one of the most complete collections of dolls in the United States; dolls from India, from Arabia and the innermost provinces of China—in fact, from nearly all the nations of the world except perhaps the Eskimos.

Each doll is dressed in its native costume. There is about an even number of boy and girl dolls. Mary Catherine does not attempt to keep her quaint playthings on the shelf, but plays a new game with them all every day.

A little repair work to the costumes now and then is about all that is needed. Mary Catherine is proud of her possessions, and is very careful of them. She never has broken a single one. She loves them all alike, dividing complete allegiance with an old rag doll that has been a companion since she was big enough to hold it.

Many of the dolls have been hard to get, Mrs. McGowan wrote. Some have interesting histories. Mary Catherine knows the "life story" of each of her twenty-seven dolls.

Mary Catherine is the daughter of Mrs. Nellie Burnett, who died three months ago in Albuquerque, N. M.

It is said that Mrs. McGowan may go abroad this summer, and Mary Catherine probably will add a few new dolls to her collection.

CY BILKS'S ELOPEMENT

By FREDERICK BOOTH

MEAN and stingy—those were the failings of Cy Bilks. The neighbors used to come into the post-office, which is my place of business, and tell me about it. They said it was natural, the same as his being so ugly.

They said that nobody could be as mean and stingy—or ugly, either—as Cy was, on his own hook, and nobody could deny that Cy was ugly. He had plenty of bones and whiskers, but he didn't have enough flesh to cover his bones and nourish his whiskers.

Sam Elder said he guessed that was where Cy's strength lay—in his whiskers, because there weren't any signs of it anywhere else.

Yet, as I say, mean and stingy, and not poor and hairy, were Cy's failings. The money he made was not his own gain half as much as it was the loss of others. He raised corn by the toil of his starved horses rather than by the sweat of his brow, and all the animals on his place looked abused and forlorn.

Cy had a daughter, and, although no one might believe it, she was as pretty and winsome a girl as ever lived. After her mother died, Sadie came in for cooking and sewing and hoeing corn and making hay, but that didn't make any difference to her. She was just as pretty and good-natured as ever.

But Cy wouldn't let his daughter get married. He said he couldn't afford to let her get married, and leave him to do all the feeding and milking. Sadie probably never would have been married if it hadn't been for Sam Elder, for nobody else had a chance to fall in love with her; and if they had had, old man Bilks would have scared them out of it. With Sam, however, it was different.

His farm adjoined the Bilks estate at the back, and he had a chance to see Sadie now and then when she was out picking wild blackberries or driving the cows up from pasture. Moreover, if Sam wanted anything, he had a way of going right after it, regardless of expense or consequences.

The first time that Sam came to call on Sadie, Mr. Bilks was too surprised to do anything but sit out in the kitchen and growl under his whiskers. But when the visits continued, and waxed longer and developed the symptoms of a real courtship, Cy got out his old sawed-off shotgun and loaded it with beans.

He thought beans would be as effective as shot, and they cost less.

Then one day Sam Elder came into the post-office and said he wanted to tell me something. He always did confide his ambitions to me; and this time he had a queer sort of smile on his face, like he always wore when he had a card up his sleeve. He told me that Sadie Bilks had promised to marry him, and he was going down to beard old man Bilks about it.

An hour later he came back with the same smile on his face, but he looked different. He looked as though he had had a hard time bearding Mr. Bilks. In fact, he looked as though Mr. Bilks had bearded him.

Sam sat down and told me all about it. "When I got there," said he, "the old man was out in the barn-lot choppin' up some stove wood, and, thinks I, I'll just sa'nter over easy like and ketch him by the face-fringe; and if ever he gets loose without givin' up Sadie, it'll shore be at an expense of considerable hair.

"Thinks I, he dassen't hit me with an ax: an' if it comes to stove wood, they's plenty fer two. But that's where I got tuk in.

"I climb the fence, and went to'rds the old feller on my toes. He spied me, but he didn't say nothin'—just kept on choppin'; only once in a while he'd look out from under his bristly-brush eyebrows at me and mutter to hisself.

"Ever see a dog growl at a chicken whilst he's eatin' his vittles? That was Cy.

"Well, I went up clost, and, says I, 'Howdy, Cy?'—and doggone! Back over a log he hopped and gethered his old gun in one hand and a stick of wood in the other, and tuk after me. Away we went across the barn-lot, lickety-cut, me headed for the road gate.

"Thinks I, ef I can get over the gate, I'm safe, fer he dassen't shoot me in the road. And I gained on 'im—I swear I gained on 'im; but just as I climb the gate, Cy lambasted me with that stick of wood."

Sam took his hat off and showed me the place. There was a welt on his head as big as an apple, that glowed red and sullen under his black hair.

"I would 'a' got off with that," he went on, reflectively stroking that lump, "but when I went to slide down on the other side of the gate, my old vest caught on the top spike, and while I was hangin' thar' Mr. Bilks shot me with his bean-gun. It hurt some worse than the stick of wood, and I yelled so loud my vest split up the back, and that's how I'm here a tellin' you about it."

I asked him if he was going to give Sadie up, and he said no. He said it was no use trying to force the old man, so he was going to use strategy.

"Strategy," observed Sam, as he moved toward the door, feeling of those bumps on his face with a tender and reminiscent touch—"strategy's a humaner way than force to tackle a decrepit old embicile that's goin' to be your father-in-law; an' I reckon, allowin' fer his disposition, it's a heap safer."

The next week, on Wednesday morning, Sam came into the post-office and told me everything was all right. He and Sadie were going to elope that very afternoon and go over to Millburg and get married.

He told me how the thing was going to work out. That afternoon, at three o'clock, when Mr. Bilks would be at work out in the corn-field, Sadie was to slip out of the house and run through the back pasture to the line fence.

Sam was to meet her there, and they would sneak through his fields to the road, where a rig would be waiting. He had borrowed his Uncle Lem's mare, Molly, and his big, high-seated road wagon, so that if Cy saw it there he wouldn't be suspicious.

If the old man should give chase, the road wagon would stand a lot of rough going, and Sadie could crawl under the seat if there was any shooting. Sam promised to come around that evening and let me know how it worked.

It was almost dark when Sam came back, and I had closed the post-office and had gone over to my house, which is next door, and was sitting out on the front porch. When Sam drove up I noticed that he was in his own buggy; and as he was by himself, I concluded that the elopement had gone wrong.

But he laughed as he came upon the porch, and slapped me on the back. Then he sat down on the porch railing and laughed again, and said that it had been the happiest day of his life.

"It looked like an easy thing to do," said Sam, "stealin' Sadie from that old whelp, for when I hitched old Moll to the fence he was away over in his fur corn-field, near a half mild from his house—I c'u'd hear him cussin' at his horses.

"I hoofed it through my corn-field and across the pasture, and there at the line fence Sadie was waitin' fer me, in her Sunday clothes, with her poor little satchel full of traps. Them was all she had to remember her dad by, an', thinks I, by the looks of that she'll forgit the ole man before we git half-way to Millburg.

"We sneaked back through the fields without no bother, and, thinks I, these is going to be the slickest and most unbeknownst elopin's that was ever celebrated in Boone County. But when we got to where we c'u'd see old Moll and the wagon, I smelt a rat, fer the mare was layin' her years back and chawin' her bit.

"So I turned around and listened, and they wasn't no more cuss comin' out of Cy's corn-field than if the old rip was dead and buried.

"Says I to Sadie, 'Your dad's down there in the weeds, a layin' to circumvent us,' and when I seen her turn white and trimbly, that riles me.

"Says I, 'But he ain't goin' to come it,' I says, an' I gathered a year of corn in one hand and led her with the other, and we went sneakin' down to the road fence in front of old Molly, so she would know we was there. I climb the fence and left Sadie standin' back a ways, and went up and looked in the weeds under the wagon. Nothin' there!

"Then I looked in the wagon. Nothin' there, thinks I at first, and was goin' to tell Sadie to come on, it was all right, when I see somethin' projectin' out from under the flap that hung down in front of the seat from the cushion.

"It looked like the end of a horse's tail, and, doggoned, if it wasn't the end of old Cy's whiskers! Then I seen somethin' else stickin' out from under that flap, and if was the end of the old bean-gun.

"Cy had saw me bitch the mare there and cut across the field, and had come over and crawled under the seat, somehow or other, and was waitin' fer me to help Sadie into the wagon. Then he was goin' to crawl out while I was unhitchin' the mare, and shoot me ag'in. It'd 'a' been funny if I hadn't 'a' been so skeered.

"Thinks I, I'll make a little racket, and when he pokes his head out I'll shell this year of corn over his head. Then, ag'in, I better not, thinks I, fer if I hit 'im it'll bust his old noggin; and if I miss 'im he'll kill me deader'n a nit with that artillery of his'n, an', either way, they's goin' to be a funeral and a law-suit.

"Anyway, thinks I, strategy's the way to circumvent his politics—thinks I, it's mighty fortynit he's crowded under there so tight with his whiskers an' old hat he can't hear me arrangin' fer his departure.

"Then I motioned to Sadie to keep still, and went to old Moll's head and helt my hand over her muzzle to keep her from nickerin', and unhitched her from the fence an' tuk the hitch-strap off the bridle. Next, I unbuckled the lines from the bridle and let them hang down loose, and turned the mare's head away from the fence an' give her a cut with that hitch-strap, an' she snaked that road wagon out o' the weeds an' went sailin' down the pike with it.

"In about half a second old man Bilks come a bilin' out from under the seat and grabbed the lines and give 'em a yaunk; but that didn't do no good, fer they wasn't fastened to the bit. Then Cy looked back and see us a laffin', and hauled his old bean-gun out and shot Molly in the head with it—both bar'ls.

"But that didn't do no good, neither. The old girl just squealed an' kicked up her heels an' flew.

"Then the old man clumb up on the seat, an' stood on his knees and looked back and vituperated plum' scan'lous. He might not 'a' been swearin', but it looked like it. His gesticulations was profane; but old Moll was makin' so much noise with her feet we couldn't hear the words he said.

"Thinks I, if Cy lights onto the ground while he's proceedin' at that unparalleled rate of travel, he'll have to do it over a couple or three mild of territory, for Molly was doin' herself proud; and that road wagon was bouncin' up an' down on the dirt like a tin can tied to a homesick dog's tail. Then it went out of sight over the hill.

"Then I says to Sadie that we'd go and get my rig and go on to Millburg, and get married while the old man was off on his tower of the continent. But she said no, we'd better just go over to the justice's and get married, fer if we went to Millburg her parent would likely be waiting fer us there with his bean-gun all loaded up again.

"But I says, 'No, Cy won't be fortunit enough to stay in the wagon till it goes through Millburg; and if he is, he might stay a spell longer.' Says I to Sadie: 'If your parent stays in that vehicle till old Molly gets played out, he'll go clear acrost the State line and be in Illinoy before we get within a mild of Millburg.'

"And Sadie said she hoped he would hold tight and not fall out anywhere along the road; anyhow, not in Millburg.

"Well, we went up to my house and hitched up the four-year-old, and lit out for town—nigh about half past three—by another road from the one Cy and Molly had tuk.

"Arriv' about five! Drove up to Preacher Snyder's, and he tied the knot! And, thinks I, while he's a doin' his duty, if this strategy business don't beat brute force and hair-pullin' and tooth-and-toenail argyment all holler, then I'm a sinner and no mistake.

"Paid the preacher, and he kissed the bride! Then we got in the buggy and struck out fer home, on our honeymoon. Sadie said it was our honeymoon, and laughed and sang and whistled, and drove the colt—happy!

"I reckon she had never been happy before, and thinks I to myself, 'Sam Elder, if you don't make up to her what she's missed and more, too—and spread it on thick—you'll deserve to spend your eternity in perdition, bucked and gagged and shackled to old Cy Bilks.'

"Well, we went on fer about four mild, and Sadie was snuggled down ag'inst my shoulder singing to herself, when we come acrost old Molly eatin' grass, with nothin' hitched to her but the wagon-shavs, and they looked like they'd been draggin' fer a spell. I got out and throwed the shavs over the fence and took the mare in tow.

"We kep' an eye peeled fer the old man along the byways and hedges fer about two mild; and when we come to Mike Hallowell's place, where his old pond comes clear out to the road, we seen the remainders of the road wagon strung along the pike fer about a hundred yards, just like a cyclone had lit on it and smeared it into the dirt.

"And over the fence by the edge of the pond we seen Mike and his two big boys pullin' and haulin' away on a rope that was tied to somethin' stuck in the mud. When we got a little closter we seen that the thing stuck in the mud was Mr. Bilks; but the only way we could tell it was him was by the way the cuss words come out of the mud when Mike and his boys pulled on the rope.

"I up and asked Mike what all the swearin' was about, and he wiped the sweat off of his face and said that Cy had on a new pair of boots and was afraid they was going to pull him out and leave them boots stickin' in the mud."

MEMBERS PRAY FOR MINISTER

Congregation Supports Pastor Now on Trial for Perjury.

HE DENIES THREATS

Fort Worth, Texas, April 18.—Despite the fact that he has been indicted by two grand juries, one charging that he wrote the anonymous letters threatening himself and the officers of his congregation, the other charging him with having set fire to the church building, the Rev. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church, has entered upon his trial on the first charge with the solid support of his congregation.

By unanimous vote, the members of the congregation adopted the report of the deacons, refusing to accept the resignation of their pastor, delivered on the eve of his indictment charging him with arson.

Every day, while the trial progresses, the women members of the congregation hold prayer services, meeting each day in the home of a different member, to send up their petitions that their pastor may be vindicated before the world and that those who seek his downfall may reap the confusion which they deserve.

Victim of a Conspiracy.

Attorneys for Norris will charge, and attempt to prove to the satisfaction of twelve Tarrant county jurors, that the pastor is the victim of a far-reaching conspiracy; that torn bits of paper that exactly matched the paper on which one of the anonymous letters was written, even to the water mark, were dropped where they would cast suspicion on him; that peculiarities of spelling, and other strongly suspicious circumstances were carefully framed by the conspirators for the purpose of pointing to Norris with a view to remove him from the activities of the reform movement which he has vigorously led.

Mrs. Norris suggested the daily prayer to the congregation, but is not in attendance on the meetings. She is constantly by the side of her husband in the court room, her attention never relaxing, and no word from the opposing counsel or the court escaping her.

As he goes from his temporary home at the residence of one of the deacons to the office of his attorneys, and from the office to the court house, Norris is constantly accompanied by a special officer, employed by members of the congregation to safeguard him against any attack.

Trial Is Paramount Interest.

Believing that his assassination was attempted when two shots were fired through his study window and when he and Deacon White were attacked by an armed man as they walked home from a prayer meeting, friends of Norris fear he is still in danger of losing his life before the trial shall have been completed.

The opposing attorneys have caught the partisan spirit that pervades the people and many times a day sharp encounters call forth the emphatic rebukes from Judge Tom Simmons.

The defendant listens to the proceedings with polite, rather than personal, interest. His patience appeared under the strongest strain, while his lawyers, in the preliminary stages, presented all the motions known to criminal procedure, looking to delay. A motion to quash the indictment, to change the venue and other technical contentions were made over Norris' protest. He was even seen to nod his head in vigorous assent when Judge Simmons, in overruling a motion to quash the indictment, declared that the day was past for trying defendants on technicalities.

Is Opposed to Sharp Practice.

Many of those who through the court room recalled that less than a year ago the pastor delivered a sermon on "The Technicalities of the Law" that was blistering in its denunciation of the safeguards which have been built up around criminals and in which he mentioned a number of Fort Worth criminal lawyers as able to clear a man charged with any crime, provided he had enough money.

Norris and his congregation have retained six firms of lawyers to represent him, while the state has only one special prosecutor. Norris, although the central figure in the trial, and the defendant in the case, preserves the good-natured pose of a man whose enemies, rather than himself, are being arraigned before the bar of justice.

He has signified a desire to make an argument to the jury, and although his attorneys will overrule his wishes as contrary to all precedent where able counsel is employed, it is by no means unlikely that the jurors will hear from the pastor's lips an argument surpassing in oratorical merit any speech his attorneys may make.

As the defense is based upon a conspiracy, the evidence will not be confined to the sending of the anonymous letters, which Pastor Norris told the grand jurors he knew nothing about and in which sworn statement he was indicted for perjury. The evidence will cover the two firings of the church, the two firings of the parsonage and the two alleged attacks upon the pastor. For this reason it is likely that the trial will be long drawn out, a near-parallel to the Sneed case in its scope.

Mrs. Minnie Moody, Frankfort, Ind., has found Foley's Honey and Tar Compound to give such good results that she uses it for all coughs and colds with the best results. She says, "I wish to recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It is the only thing I ever found to relieve my little girl of a cought."

THACKERAY AS A REPORTER

Future Great Novelist Just the Man to Enjoy Such Spicy Repartee as the Following.

Thackeray once acted as police reporter for the London Diogenes, and performed his work in no perfunctory way. How the future novelist must have enjoyed observing and recording this bit of courtroom humor:

Pat Fogarty went all the way from Manchester to London in order to thrash Mick Fitzpatrick, which he did, winding up the performance with the assistance of an "awful horseshoe." He was detected and brought before Mr. Justice Simpleman.

"Well, sir," began the court, "you came here from Manchester, did you?"

"Your honor has answered correct."

"You see the complainant's head; it was cut by a sharp instrument. Do you know what cut it?"

"Ain't your honor after sayin' that a sharp insthrumint did?"

"I see you mean to equivocate," said the court, becoming restive. "Now, sir, you cut that head; you came here to cut it, did you not? Now, sir, what motive brought you to London?"

"The locomotive, per honor."

"Equivocating again, you scoundrel!" said the court, waxing warm. Raising up the horseshoe, and holding it before Pat, he said, "Do you see this horseshoe, sir?"

"Is it a horseshoe, yer honor?"

"Don't you see it is, sir? Are you blind? Can you not tell at once that it is a horseshoe?"

"Bedad, no, yer honor."

"No?" angrily,

"No, yer honor; but can yersilf tell?"

"Of course I can, you stupid Irishman."

"Oh, glory be to goodness, see what education is!" soliloquized Pat, aloud, "Sure, yer honor, a poor, ignorant creature like mesilf wouldn't knew a horse's shoe from a mare's."—Youth's Companion.

LIKE THE WAIL OF BANSHEE

Mournful Cry of the Screech-Owl Heard in Youth, Plainly Recalled in After Years.

From the orchard, too, on an autumn midnight, comes the mournful whistle of a screech-owl. Most of us who have heard the screech-owl at all have heard its call drifting down from an old orchard on a frosty October night. The chill of coming winter, the cattle stamping in dark stables, a dim and ghostly world stretching over garnered fields to the mystery of the woods, and a gnarled, ancient orchard up the slope seem phantomlike under a waning moon—these are the setting for the screech-owl's mournful whistle. I can at this moment shut my eyes, reproduce that whistle in my throat, and bring back to memory as if it were yesterday, the scene as my boyhood eyes saw it from my chamber window, whence I peeped with frosted breath before diving into bed, and I can actually smell (for all the tobacco smoke in my present study) the peculiar odor of the cold October night air, and feel again a vague, almost terrifying melancholy chill in my heart as, in the darkness, I heard from the orchard that reiterated whoo-oo-oo-oo. Like the whip-poor-will on the pasture rail on a hot evening of July, this other night-singer of New England seems to dwell just on the skirts of human habitations and to keep our souls reminded of the sadness of the world.—Walter Prichard Eaton, in Harper's Bazar.

SHORT STORIES WORTH READING

WHY?

WHILE lounging at my club one evening not long ago and trying to divert my mind from business cares and worries by the perusal of a magazine, I began to be annoyed greatly by the persistent endeavors of a fly to explore my countenance. Of course I am not a Job, but I believe I am at least moderately patient.

Finally, completely exasperated, I made one final fierce lunge at the fly, which took momentary effect and sent it whizzing or buzzing, I don't know which, over the back of my chair.

Then I turned upon Colonel Travers, who had watched the whole bout, and made some forcible remarks, the gist of which was that imps are accustomed to take the form of flies for the sake of more effectually tormenting and persecuting human beings.

"THERE WAS A HUNTED LOOK IN HIS EYES."

A queer expression came to the Colonel's face, and he asked presently:—"Do you remember the curious death of Frank Dunster last year?" adding, "It was my fortune to be with Frank shortly before his death, and, if it would interest you, I will try to explain some of the mystery connected with his last days."

I was not exactly grateful to Colonel Travers for trying to change the subject, though I did admire his tact. However, I was not averse to listening to the tale, as I had known and liked Frank, and the untimely shortening of his life had surprised and shocked me not a little. On the whole my affirmative was rather eager.

"Frank and I were together at college," the Colonel commenced, "and I knew him intimately. He was a jolly fellow, liked by all who knew him. He had one fault. I often wondered how a fellow so generous hearted as he was in all his relations to other persons could be so thoughtless of the sufferings of animals.

"After leaving college we drifted apart, both spending much time in foreign travel. I heard of him again in Delhi, India.

"While studying the splendors of the city my guide began suddenly telling me a queer tale of an American whom he had recently conducted through the Mogul's palace. This man, he said, was young and handsome, but afflicted with some strange visitation; in short, he was a madman. For some reason, I can't explain why, the tale interested me sufficiently to draw from me a number of questions concerning this supposed fellow citizen of mine. The answers both startled and oppressed me. Strangely enough, a thought of Frank flitted through my mind.

"I decided to search for him.

"I will not go into details of my search, for they are not particularly interesting. The fact is that I now fully believed the so-called 'madman' to be my former chum, and I determined at any cost to find him. I was finally successful in tracing him to Benares, and there one evening, when I called at the home of a business acquaintance, whom should I discover smoking at ease on the wide veranda of the bungalow but the object of my search himself—Frank Dunster! Imagine my joy and satisfaction at finding my old chum, changed, to be sure, thinner and a trifle nervous, perhaps, but seemingly as sane and as well poised as ever.

"I was glad to accept Mr. Marston's invitation to stay for the night.

"In confidence he told me of a suspicion that had been troubling him during the several weeks of Frank's visit at the bungalow. He was frequently moody and preoccupied, talked queer, unintelligible things about Buddhistic beliefs concerning future blessing or punishment, and passed altogether too much time in reading and study. He feared the young man was dabbling in some brain-racking philosophy or other.

"I suggested a journey to Calcutta, and Frank accepted eagerly, for he had grown so restless and irritable that he was willing to consent to almost anything that promised novelty.

"We were on the veranda one day of the bungalow I had hired for our use, Frank stretched at length in an invalid chair.

"'Frank,' I said, 'in the name of all that is dearest both to you and me, and for the sake of our old college friendship, I beg you to tell me what is this thing that is killing you.'

"He closed his eyes for a moment, then turned them full upon me, and beckoning me to draw my chair nearer, said:—

"'You are right, Travers, it IS killing me. I could not bear to tell you before, but now I think it only just to you after all your devotion, and I want you to know that I appreciate that. You know I was always thought cruel to animals. But I'll swear I never meant to be so; in fact, I know now that my ideas concerning them were utterly wrong for years. Yet even thoughtless cruelty is inexcusable, and I am being severely punished for mine.

"'While sitting on the veranda of the bungalow on a tea plantation in Ceylon one day some six months ago, I was annoyed by a fly that persisted in buzzing about my head. After several fruitless attempts to drive it away, I set patiently to work to catch it, and finally succeeding, I proceeded to do what I considered punishing the fly. This consisted in removing its legs and one wing and then releasing it.

"'A few days later I became aware of a curious annoyance, a fly which I could not see, but which buzzed constantly about my head, and could not be brushed away. I thought at first, of course, that it must be a delusion, and tried to throw the fancy off my mind.

"'But I couldn't will myself unconscious of a thing that went thump, thump against my face incessantly day after day.

"'I was pretty strong, but I could not resist it forever. I went clear across Northern India, travelling on horseback. I thought the open air and the dangers of that kind of travelling might help, but they didn't.

"'It gradually dawned upon me that nothing would help. I was being punished for a deed that the higher power to which we all must answer could not overlook.

"'I gave up wandering and accepted an old invitation, resolved to mingle in society again and hide my hateful secret as best I could. You know the rest, except one thing. The fly follows me incessantly wherever I go. Even when I roll my head in the bedclothes at night it still buzzes and hums close to my face so that I cannot sleep. I have scarcely slept for weeks, and if I cannot get some rest soon I shall collapse.'

The Colonel hesitated a moment. Then he went on hastily.

"I may as well be brief. Frank died in June, the tenth. His last words were:—'Promise me, Tom, that you will never wantonly harm one of God's creatures however lowly it may be, and that you will always use your influence with others to keep every one from intentionally injuring any of the brute creation.'

"YOU ARE RIGHT, TRAVERS, IT IS KILLING ME."

"There is one other circumstance that I would like to omit, but I should feel that I had withheld something of importance. On the day after Frank's death, after the body had been placed in the coffin before removing it to the embalmer's, I went alone into the room to take my last look when I might be undisturbed. As I stood gazing at that face, so worn and changed that I wondered whether his own mother would recognize it, I noticed a black insect fluttering about close to his right cheek.

"The thing kept on fluttering about near his face for a little time, without a single sound, half raising itself now and then on its wing, and evidently trying to fly up away from the body. Then, still fluttering awkwardly, it worked its way along until it fell down to the bottom of the coffin. It lay there quivering slightly for a moment, then remained quiet.

"I went to the door and called the white servant whom I had recently procured, and directed him to place the insect in a small box and bury it in the garden. He came obediently and looked into the coffin. Then he turned and started strangely at me.

"'Master is mistaken. I find no fly,' he said.

"I looked again, wondering if I could have been mistaken. But there it still lay, just as I had seen it fall. I repeated my order, but the servant insisted vigorously that I was mistaken, that he could see no fly. At last, in order to prove to him that I was indeed right, I put my own hand into the coffin to take the insect out. I touched only the bare wood. When I removed my hand, however, my eyes told me that the thing was still there. Bewildered, I touched the spot again and again, though always with the same result. There was certainly nothing [illegible]

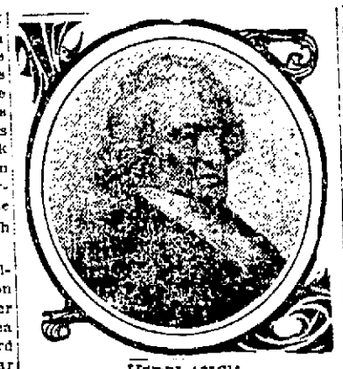
Men Who Helped to Make America



VERPLANCK

GULIAN CROMMELIN VERPLANCK was a man whose activities in many directions made him one of the most useful citizens of his time. He was born in New York city in 1786, the son of Daniel C. Verplanck and a notable representative of one of the oldest Dutch families of the Commonwealth.

When he graduated from Columbia College in 1801 he at once attracted attention as the youngest graduate who had ever received the degree of A. B. from his alma mater. He then studied law with Edward Livingston and was admitted to the bar in 1807.

He again created some stir when he made his first public appearance in 1809, when he was the orator on the Fourth of July in the North Dutch Reformed Church. He turned easily to writing, and his first works were of a political nature and in a satirical vein. "The State Triumvirate," his most important work of that character, was directed at De Witt Clinton and his allies.

His activities took many directions. He was a member of the New York Assembly in 1819. He became a professor in the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary, and afterward a member of Congress, resigning from that position to devote his energies to writing.

In 1828 he was elected to the State Senate and was a leading member of the Court of Errors. He edited an edition of Shakespeare, helped to found the Century Club, served as a governor of the New York Hospital, was a regent of the New York University and a trustee of Columbia College. For twenty-four years he was the President of the Board of Emigration and for fifty years, one of the most prominent literary men in New York. He died in March, 1870.

COUNTY OF MONROE }

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair which was the envy of my friends and which attracted the attention and remarks of strangers, but as I grew older it commenced to come out. When my hair was quite thin and gray, I was induced by the many good reports I had heard of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to try a bottle; and you can imagine my satisfaction when I found my hair was fast coming back to its natural condition. I continued to use Sage and Sulphur until my hair was as heavy, dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. It is now four years since I began using Sage and Sulphur and my hair is in splendid condition.

CLINE CALLED TO SPEAKER'S CHAIR

Clark Said to Be Playing Politics With Hoosier Congressmen.

WARMS UP TO THEM

Washington, April 18.—Champ Clark is making a sensational bid for position as Indiana's second choice at the Baltimore convention.

He is making use of what is known in the house of representatives as "speakership politics" to accomplish that end. The speaker is an adroit politician, and he is depending upon the friendship that exists for him among members of the Indiana congressional delegation to help him land those thirty Indiana votes at Baltimore.

In order to cement that friendship and make it all the more potential, he is showering honors on the Indiana representatives right and left. It is a common saying in the house of representatives that there is no member so big or so old in the service that he does not feel considerably elated when called upon to preside over the house as speaker pro tem.

Warms Up to Hoosiers.

Indiana is furnishing practically all of the temporary presiding officers these days. This is causing a great deal of talk among members of the house from other states, who are "catching on" to the politics of the situation. When Representative Cline of Indiana was called by the speaker to the chair yesterday to preside temporarily there was a noisy round of applause from those who were "wise."

Recently the speaker has chosen to preside over the house at different times Representatives Dixon, Rauch, Morrison, Cline, Boehne, Adair, Cullop and Barnhart.

"We know why the speaker is warming up to us," said a member of the Indiana delegation, "and it's all right. We are for him for second choice and we're getting stronger for him every day."

PARES DOWN THE NAVAL EXPENSE

No Battleships or Cruisers This Year, Says the Committee.

THE CUT IS $5,000,000

Washington, April 18.—The naval committee of the house today voted against battleships and cruisers as part of this year's addition to the American fleet. The following program was agreed upon by the committee: Two fuel ships, $630,000 each; four submarines, $300,000 each; six torpedo boat destroyers, $558,000 each, and a tender for the destroyers.

A direct vote upon the question of building battleships resulted in the defeat of the proposition. The proposed naval program is $5,000,000 less than that of last year.

The Case of Mrs. Pierce.

Representative Lloyd, of Missouri, chairman of the committee on accounts, stated to the house today that Mrs. Helen Pierce Gray, whose connection with the committee on expenditures in the interior department precipitated warm personalities between Mr. Graham of Illinois, chairman of the expenditures committee, and Mr. Mann, minority leader, was paid $75 a month from the democratic congressional campaign committee funds for her work for the house committee. Mr. Lloyd is chairman of the democratic congressional committee.

A telegram signed by the mayors of 36 cities in New York state, urging legislation to require adequate life boat equipment, was read in both houses of congress today.

The senate finance committee today ordered an adverse report on the house chemical tariff revision bill. It was a strict party vote, the republican members voting against it and the democrats for it. The vote was 8 to 6.

USING MUCH CASH SAYS MR. M'KINLEY

Questions Roosevelt Victories as "Great Popular Demand."

TAFT CHIEF SHOCKED

Washington, April 18. Director McKinley, of the national Taft bureau, today issued a statement calling attention to the alleged use of money in the Roosevelt campaign.

"The lavish expenditure of money in this campaign by the backers of former President Theodore Roosevelt," says the statement, "has led to the question being raised: 'Were the victories for Roosevelt in Pennsylvania and Oklahoma due to a 'great popular demand' for his renomination, or to the use of money?'"

Further along Mr. McKinley says: "In no preconvention campaign in the history of the country has money been used in such large sums, amounting, in view of the general verdict of the country with respect to certain expenditures by senators of the United States, to plain bribery and corruption, as has been expended by the backers of Theodore Roosevelt."

Mr. McKinley declares the Roosevelt forces spent large sums in Oklahoma, that they distributed $100,000 in Allegheny county, Pa., including Pittsburg, by issuing 20,000 pieces of "scrip" in five dollar denominations to "messengers," that the total Roosevelt expenditures in Pennsylvania were between $250,000 and $500,000; that in New York county alone $200,000 was spent in an endeavor to influence the primaries and that efforts were made to "buy out" precinct captains in New York.

"In this connection," said the McKinley statement, "one district captain in New York did sell out to the Roosevelt managers, plainly showing that Mr. Roosevelt was not the candidate in 'answer to a great popular demand,' but the beneficiary of a bag of good, hard dollars."

ASSERTS BODIES WILL NEVER RISE

declared Prof. Remsert Wood, of the chair of experimental physics of Johns Hopkins university, today.

"It is altogether improbable that any of the corpses will ever return to the surface as is the case with bodies drowned in shallow water.

"At the depth of two miles the pressure of the water is something like 6,000 pounds to the square inch, which is far too great to be overcome by buoyancy ordinarily given drowned bodies by the gases generated in time.

"That the bodies sank to the bottom of the sea there is no question," he continued. "The Titanic's victims who were not carried down with the boat, followed until the very bottom was reached. There was no such thing as their stopping in their downward course a half mile, a mile or at any other point.

"Great changes have necessarily been wrought in the vessel itself by the enormous pressure to which it has been subjected. No effect was produced by any portion, or compartment, or room to whose inside, as well as outside walls the water has access. In such instances the pressure from one side neutralized that from the other.

"But wherever there was an airtight or watertight compartment the 6,000 pounds to a square inch pressure of water has crumpled those walls of the vessel as if they were tissue paper."

MAKES GRAPHIC COMPARISON.

Impact More Powerful Than Battleship's Fire.

Washington, April 18.—A graphic comparison of the probable impact of the Titanic against the iceberg that destroyed her with the projectile force of the guns of a modern battleship, was made yesterday by Captain Charles A. McAllister, engineer in chief of the revenue cutter service.

"The impact of the Titanic against the iceberg was probably equivalent to the simultaneous fire of thirty 12-inch projectiles or the concentrated fire of three such dreadnaughts as the Florida," said Captain McAllister.

"The fire of ten 12-inch guns such as the Florida carries is supposed to be sufficient to put any battleship afloat out of business if the projectiles should strike simultaneously. The force of the Titanic striking the iceberg must have been approximately one million foot tons, equivalent to her being struck simultaneously by thirty such projectiles. It is a wonder, in the light of such a comparison, that she floated so long. It is inconceivable that the ingenuity of man can ever devise a floating structure to withstand such a terrific collision."

AUDUBON SOCIETY MEETING.

Bird Students Will Discuss Specie of Puffin.

The Allen County Audubon society will hold its regular monthly meeting Friday evening in the assembly hall of the public library. The subject to be discussed is "The Puffin." This is a specie of sea bird related to the Auk, which is extinct. In the breeding season the bird has unusual propensity in growing a larger bill, which steadily increases in size until it is about as long as the head, and as high. After the breeding season the extra bill falls away.

As it is about the time for the house wren to appear its characteristics and breeding will be appropriately discussed by members of the society. Nesting boxes will be shown which will attract the singers to nest in the vicinity of residences in the city.

NEW ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE BRIDAL VEIL

THE wedding veil now fits over the coiffure in graceful cap fashion, and if there be a bit of heirloom lace to complete the cap, so much the better. Three modish arrangements are pictured here. In one case a duchess lace handkerchief forms the cap foundation, the tulle being swathed across this and a wreath of orange blossoms crossing the head, fillet fashion. In another arrangement the tulle is pleated into a cap, orange blossoms being tucked into the deep pleats at the front. The third veil is draped from a cap of Mechlin lace.

good working wireless zone, for numbers of private messages from survivors and dispatches to the line were constantly being received during the morning, but no word came to the repeated requests for details of the accident.

The cruisers Chester and Salem and the government wireless stations on shore stopped sending that the Carpathia might have an uninterrupted field for sending news.

But Thirteen Boats?

The Carpathia has sent ashore names of 125 third-class passengers and has requested the White Star line to send a ship's officer and fourteen sailors on two tugs to take charge of thirteen Titanic lifeboats at quarantine. This would indicate that only thirteen lifeboats had been available for rescue work instead of twenty lifeboats, as had been approximated.

All hope has been given up that Col. John Jacob Astor, Isidor Strauss, Benjamin Guggenheim, George D. Widener, Archibald Butt, military aide to President Taft, Henry B. Harris, the theatrical manager, and Charles M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk railway, have been saved.

The Carpathia's wireless operator sent word this morning that Col. Astor was not on the Carpathia, and he did not know whether Benjamin Guggenheim or Major Archibald Butt were aboard or not. The scout cruiser Salem requested information regarding Major Butt from the Carpathia, but the Cunarder gave no answer. The Salem sent ashore the following message:

"I can read the Carpathia, but he won't take any business from me."

Message Not Received.

The cruiser Chester has informed the navy department by wireless that having sent the list of third class passengers on the Carpathia via the Salem she was now proceeding to Delaware Bay. The scout cruiser Salem has sent the following wireless to Washington:

"From U. S. S. Salem, to Washington—Your telegram relative to Major Butt and others was relayed to Chester promptly and acknowledged, and I later sent a second inquiry, just to learn at 10 p. m. that the original message was not received by Chester. Am now trying for Carpathia direct to inquire. Conditions very unfavorable with many stations interfering with each other. Salem will proceed Bradford Thursday for coal, thence Boston.

Widener Not Aboard.

George D. Widener, the Philadelphia capitalist, is not aboard the Carpathia. That information was received by the White Star line office early today. No mention was made of his son, Harry Elkins Widener, in the wireless dispatch. Many of the wireless messages sent by survivors to their families show that they hold the hopes that those from whom they had been separated were safe aboard other steamships.

"I am praying that my husband has been picked up by another steamer," was a wireless message sent by a survivor to her family. Only a few of those who still clung to a faint hope that their family or friends might still be numbered among the saved aboard the Carpathia remained all night at the White Star line offices. The wireless word received late yesterday from the cruiser Chester that the first and second cabin passenger lists had been sent ashore was a heavy blow to the many who kept vigil for many hours at the offices of the company.

To Care for Survivors.

Special arrangements have been made to care for the survivors when the Carpathia docks. Customs regulations have been suspended and there will only be a short inspection at quarantine by the health department as is mandatory under the law. Police reserves will be stationed at the Cunard line pier and only those who are friends or relatives of the survivors with proper credentials will be permitted on the pier.

Taxicabs and hotel accommodations have been provided for first and second cabin passengers who are not able to proceed at once to their homes, while the steerage passengers will be cared for by the immigration department at Ellis Island or by the municipal lodging house, which has been placed at their disposal.

Wealthy Women Act.

A score or more of wealthy society women have organized a relief committee to aid the steerage survivors of the Titanic and have telegraphed President Taft, offering to assist the government in the work of caring for the third class passengers.

The White Star line posted a bulletin that the Carpathia was off Nantucket at 6 o'clock this morning and was due here at 9 o'clock tonight. This would bring her to her dock at about 11 o'clock unless the heavy mist and fog which hung over the Atlantic seaboard this morning, causes further delay.

Vice President Franklin, of the White Star line, authorized the following announcement this morning: "The Cedric will sail as scheduled at noon today."

Mr. and Mrs. Straus Missing.

C. W. Thomas, assistant manager of the traffic department of the White Star line, said that no arrangements had been made to transfer J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the International Mercantile marine from the Carpathia to the Cedric at sea and that as far as he knew Mr. Ismay would remain aboard the Carpathia.

A representative of R. H. Macey & Co., stated this morning that an official of the firm had received by wireless a confirmation that Isidor Straus and his wife were not among the survivors on the Carpathia. The fog is setting in very thick down bay and as far out as Sandy Hook, and if it continues it doubtless will delay the arrival of the Carpathia.

Franklin Has No News.

Vice President Franklin, of the White Star line, said this afternoon:

"We are not getting a thing by wireless from the Carpathia. We have heard from her several times, but there is not the slightest explanation of the Titanic's sinking or anything pertaining to the disaster in any way in any of the wireless messages we have received."

"Have you heard from Mr. Ismay?"

"Yes, replied Mr. Franklin. "I have received several messages from Mr. Ismay. The last one came in during the night. Mr. Ismay is stunned beyond expression. He is simply over whelmed."

Mr. Franklin declined to make public the messages from Mr. Ismay. Asked if it was true that Mr. Ismay would transfer from the Carpathia to the Cedric at sea, Mr. Franklin said: "I am certain that no attempt to transfer will be made."

Had Warned Titanic.

The Atlantic transport liner Mesaba in today from England, gives the information that at 7:50 o'clock last Sunday night the following message was sent to the Titanic:

"Much heavy packed ice and great number of bergs. Weather clear."

The Titanic replied "Thanks."

The Titanic at the time the messages were exchanged, was estimated by Captain Clarke to be about ninety miles astern of the Mesaba.

Explanation of the failure of the Mesaba to get the "S. O. S." calls of the Titanic when she hit the berg, is made by Stanley Adams, wireless operator of the Mesaba, who said today that he had his instruments tuned for a much greater radius than ninety miles after warning the Titanic and the waves passed him by without registering on his receiver."

Probably Perished Quickly.

The oil tank steamer La Flandere, which came in today from Antwerp, reported an interesting encounter with the ice field on April 11, at 9 o'clock at night in latitude 42.02 and longitude 50.07. During the intermittent fog Captain Claude says that the La Flandere steamed into a large ice field, which became so thickly packed that the steamer could not penetrate it. As far as it could be seen from aloft the ice extended in all directions. La Flandere was compelled to put about and steamed for twenty miles to the southward in order to clear the ice-field. The temperature of the water on entering the ice pack registered 30 degrees and after clearing the ice pack it arose to 54 degrees.

If the Titanic sank in water registering but thirty degrees those who may have leaped overboard probably survived but a few moments.

Should Dock at 11 p. m.

The following bulletin was made public by the White Star line shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon:

"Carpathia due at Sandy Hook 9 p. m. Should dock at 11 p. m."

The Sagaponack, Long Island, wireless station reports that the Carpathia's wireless operator is "all in." The Sagaponack station says efforts will be made to put two fresh wireless operators on board from a tug.

Chicago Man Wounds His Sweetheart and His Rival.

Chicago, April 18.—While walking along the street together two persons were shot in the back of the head today by Nicholas Staplas, 22 years old. One of the victims was Florence Miller, a year younger tha athe assailant. Her companion was Philip Tenerelli, a few years older.

One bullet struck Miss Miller behind her right ear and inflicted a probably fatal wound. The shot that hit Tenerelli furrowed his scalp.

Staplas and Tenerelli are rivals. The police locked both up.

ELDER STIBBENS INSANE, HE SAYS

Outlined as Defense in Trial of His Sons for Murder.

FAMILY FEARED HIM

Bloomfield, Ind., April 18.—An outline of the defense of Edward and Ray Stibbens, on trial for the murder of their father, George W. Stibbens, was given the jury this morning, Attorney Inman requiring three hours to complete his statement.

At the beginning Mr. Inman tried to make it plain that the elder Stibbens was insane and that he died by his own hand. He said that Stibbens had complained of severe pains in his head on the day he was found dead. Members of his family feared that he would drop over dead from heart trouble and when first told of his death, supposed that he had died from natural causes.

Attorney Inman denied that the Stibbens boys owned a high power revolver, such as the state had contended. He declared that the state had overlooked the fact that a pocket book containing sixty dollars was missing after the body had been removed from the barn yard to the house. He also declared that tracks leading from the barn toward the home of Ray Stibbens will be explained easily.

In explaining why Edward Stibbens slept at his father's house when he was forbidden to enter, Attorney Inman said that he did so to quell the fears of his two sisters who were teaching school in northern Indiana. He said the young women believed their father, in one of his "spells" might harm their mother.

To show that Edward's presence was needed in the home at night Mr. Inman told of numerous times when the elder Stibbens would wander into the yard at night and talk about the Lord during a religious frenzy.

spreading over the fertile delta lands today. Practically the entire southern half or Boliver county is inundated and before it flows back into the Mississippi the water will flood the counties of Sunflower, Washington, Sharkey and Issaquent — comprising some of the richest cotton land in the world. Benoit, Dahomey, Beulah, Cleveland, Pace, Shaw, Choctaw, Leland and Rolling Fork are the largest towns directly in the path of the overflow.

Gasoline launches will be sent from this city and Rosedale early today to begin an exploration of the inundated territory in search of refugees. If any lives are lost it is believed the number will be small, as preparations for flight had been made at all the important towns.

The crevasse in the levee occurred late last night on the Hughes plantation, in Bolivar county, four miles south of Beulah, and about 40 miles north of Greenville. When the embankment gave way 150 feet of the earth works collapsed. This morning the gap is almost a thousand feet wide.

SIX INCHES OF SNOW.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 18.—About six inches of snow fell in Milwaukee and vicinity during the night, causing considerable inconvenience to street railway and steam road travel. The storm is from the northwest and continues this morning.

ATE PEANUTS IN CHURCH.

Young Men and Women in Trouble for Disturbing Meeting.

Thornton, Wash., April 17.—Three young men were arrested for disturbing a religious meeting here and a list of nineteen others has been given the prosecuting attorney—the list including several girls, young women and two married women.

The specific act which has aroused the village and incited the arrests is set forth in the complaint as "eating peanuts in church."

COMMITTEE OF MOOSE COMING

A BANQUET AT NIGHT

The reception committee of the Fort Wayne lodge of Moose, at an informal dinner this noon at the Anthony hotel, made arrangements for the entertainment of the members of the national committee who will come to Fort Wayne tonight to inspect the sites offered by the local organization for the proposed National Moose Industrial college.

Among those who will be in the city are Judge Scott, of Davenport, Ia.; J. J. Davis, of Pittsburg, supreme organizer; E. J. Henning, of Milwaukee. These men will come from Chicago, reaching Fort Wayne at 9:05 tonight. A. L. Jones, of Indianapolis, supreme dictator, will arrive at 10:30 o'clock, and R. D. Davis, of Cleveland, will come this evening at 7:30.

With the local committee, of which Senator S. R. Fleming is chairman, a meeting will be held at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning at the Anthony hotel. The committee will then inspect all of the leading manufacturing institutions of the city. In the afternoon the visitors will be taken in a special car over the Robison park car line to view the sites bargained for by the local lodge. According to local officers, several sites are in the neighborhood of the park.

At 6:30 tomorrow evening the committee meets with a number of prominent business men, and later will enjoy a banquet at the Anthony hotel, which will be attended by a hundred or more prominent citizens. The committee will remain in Fort Wayne over Saturday.

SENATE PROBE STARTS.

J. Bruce Ismay Will Be Called Early to Give Testimony.

Washington, April 18.—The sombre task of investigating the wreck of the Titanic was begun today by senate committees. The commerce committee appointed a sub-committee of seven, headed by Senator William Alden Smith, of Michigan, to take testimony. Chairman Smith will leave at once for New York, accompanied by a senate sergeant at arms, to procure witnesses to attend immediate hearings. J. Bruce Ismay will be among the first asked to testify.

Other members of the senate sub-committee are Senators Perkins, Bourne, Simmons, Newlands and Fletcher. Senator Cullum announced today that he would call a meeting of the foreign relations committee Saturday with a view to reporting out the Martine resolution requesting the president to open negotiations for an international agreement in regard to the safety of passengers at sea.

Others to Be Called.

Among those who will be summoned to appear before the congressional investigating committee besides President J. Bruce Ismay, will be the second, third, fourth and fifth officers of the Titanic, who are reported to have been saved, and any other officers of the ship who may have survived and are on the Carpathia.

An important feature of the investigation may be the message transmitted through the Titanic April 14, the day of the calamity, from the steamer Amerika, to the hydrographic office of the United States navy, giving notice of icebergs in the Titanic's vicinity. Naval officials are of the opinion that one of the ice bergs reported by the Amerika through the Titanic was the cause of the Titanic's wreck. These officers were amazed by the reports that the Titanic was going ahead at full speed in view of the known presence of danger.

Chairman Alexander, of the house committee on merchant marine, was emphatic today in his declaration that the present laws and maritime regulations of the United States, if properly enforced, are strong enough to compel an adequate number of life boats on vessels entering or leaving United States ports. Representative Sulzer, of New York, opposed an investigation.

Would Make It Felony.

"It is only throwing dust in the people's eyes," he said. "The matter was fully gone into when the Slocum burned in New York several years ago. What we want is to make steamship owners criminally liable for failing to equip properly their vessels. Make it a felony and send those criminally negligent steamship men to jail and we will have no more of these disasters."

The Alexander bill to regulate wireless telegraph was favorably acted upon by the merchant marine committee and reported back to the house shortly after noon. It would rigidly restrict the operations of amateurs to wave lengths not exceeding 200 meters. Experimenters or others engaged in important work might receive special permits from the secretary of commerce and labor to operate under greater wave lengths.

The Alexander resolution for the establishment of recognized trans-Atlantic travel routes by international agreements was also favorably reported by the committee. The two measures probably will come up for action at an early date.

OFF NANTUCKET LIGHT.

Siasconset, Mass., April 18.—The steamer Carpathia, bringing survivors of the sunken Titanic to New York, was off the Nantucket lightship at 5:55 this morning. This places the Carpathia 196 miles distant from New York. On the basis of the Carpathia's average speed of thirteen knots an hour and allowing for her time in passing up New York harbor she should reach the Cunard docks in New York city at approximately 11 o'clock tonight.

THE WHEAT CROP LOOKS VERY BAD

WHEAT IS NOW $1.05

Wheat went up another cent today on the local markets. The quotation is now $1.05, and the possibility is that it will go higher. There can be no doubt that there is going to be a short crop and this is the reason for the advances made during the last few days.

In many sections of the country wheat is reported to be in a very poor condition. In Huntington county, this state, authorities say that in many localities they will not be more than ten per cent of a crop. In Allen county the farmers report a poor crop, but the showing is not so bad as that.

Wm S. Bash of the Mayflower Mills, who receives reports from localities all around Fort Wayne, in this and adjoining counties, says the outlook is that there will be from one-half to three-fourths of the usual yield. Some farmers report entire failures. Others give a short yield, differing in regard to its size.

The continued cold weather is responsible for the poor conditions. In cases where the wheat is a failure the farmers will use the fields for oats and corn.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., April 18.—Wheat prices took an upward turn today. The weather was unfavorable in the spring crop districts northwest of Chicago. This had a partial offset in heavy rains throughout the greater part of the region devoted to winter wheat. July started at $1.06⅝, but reacted to $1.06½.

Predictions of the largest acreage abandonment on record led to a decided advance. It was stated also that there would be less than half a crop along the Burlington in Missouri. Closing prices, however, were easy with July at $1.06⅝@1.06¾, a net gain of ⅝c.

Wet, cold weather strengthened the market for corn. July opened at 77⅝c to 77⅝c and seemed inclined to keep within those limits. The fact that offerings of oats proved to be only scattered allowed that cereal to climb. July started at 54⅜c to 55c and steadied at 54⅝@54¾c.

After a little further rise, the market lagged, owing to news of the United States industries importing corn from Argentina. The close was weak at 75⅞@76c for July, a loss of 1¼c net.

Provisions ascended, owing to the upward tendency of grain and hogs. Initial transactions in September delivery were $18.75 to $18.80 for pork, $10.60@10.67½ for lard and $10.47½ for ribs.

United States Steel showed strength, as did the issues of the independent steel and iron companies, including Republic Iron and Steel and Bethlehem Steel. Minor declines were made by Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Southern Railway, Lehigh Valley, Atchison preferred and American Can.

The market closed slow. Toward the end there was an appreciable stiffening all around, but the buying was of the most trivial character and the day's changes were unimportant.

Inexhaustible Supply of Iron.

One of the most wonderful sources of iron in the world is at Lac a la Tortue, Quebec, near to where iron has been smelted since 1733. Organic acids dissolve the iron rust in the sandy bottom of the rivers running into the lake, where the exposure of its surface to the air turns the composition into a persalt, forming in a film upon the surface. This sinks in the lake forming "cake ore," which is smelted at the Radnor forges into the finest charcoal iron. The supply is always being replenished, and the lake furnishes one of the few "iron mines" in the world which will probably never be exhausted.

RISK CONCERNS FACE BIG LOSS

Disaster's Cost to Accident Companies is About $2,000,000.

WILL PAY PROMPTLY

New York, April 18.—Accident insurance companies in this country and England stand to lose approximately $2,000,000, it was estimated today by insurance experts, as a result of the Titanic disaster. The loss, it was explained, will be doubled by reason of the so-called "double liability clause," which requires insurance companies to pay twice the amount of the death benefits where the policy holder loses his life while traveling on a public conveyance (propelled by steam or electricity.)

All the companies have their inspectors estimating the aggregate liabilities in case most of the first and second cabin passengers are actually lost. As soon as it is established that no survivors have been picked up, claims will be paid without delay, it was announced.

Straight life insurance men were interested today by the discovery that on board the Titanic there was only one man who is on the "big list" of insured. He was George Wyck, of Youngstown, Ohio, and his name is not among those of the known survivors. Mr. Wyck is rated as carrying $150,000 insurance, which would mean, it is said by insurance men, that his policies aggregate $250,000.

John Jacob Astor, according to the insurance men, has been conspicuous among men who do not carry life insurance, and the same is true of Benjamin Guggenheim and Isidor Straus.

HAD POINTED DANGERS.

Government Hydrographic Maps in Hands of Ship Masters.

Washington, April 18.—For more than a quarter of a century the hydrographic office of the bureau of navigation, navy department, has been publishing from month to month a series of charts of the north Atlantic ocean, depicting physical conditions as well as the location of dangers to navigation as reported by incoming ships. These publications are circulated freely among ship masters and shipping people in return for their news of the sea, the point of contact between the office at Washington and the marine world being a chain of branch hydrographic offices at the principal seaports.

In recent years the collection of marine data has been immensely accelerated by the use of radio-telegraphy and the hydrographic office is thereby enabled to publish in a daily memorandum whatever important reports of dangers have been received regarding dangerous derelicts and icebergs.

The shipping companies also had been provided from month to month with the pilot chart showing the conditions of ice up to the time of printing.

The April pilot chart issued March 28 shows that in March ice had come as far south as latitude 44 n. The memorandum prior to thirteenth instant showed that the trend of ice was southward, icebergs being sighted below the 43rd parallel on April 7, 8, 9 and 11.

The Titanic's position was reported to have been latitude 41.16, longtitude 50.14 at the time of her disaster.

A LARGE CONTRACT.

What Meyer Bros. Co. Wants Every Person in Fort Wayne to Do.

When Meyer Bros. Co., the enterprising druggists, first offered a 50 cent package of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price, and guaranteed to return the money if it did not cure, they thought it probable from their experience with other medicines for these diseases that they would have a good many packages returned. But although they have sold hundreds of bottles, not one has been brought back.

To those suffering with dizziness, headache, poor digestion, constipation and straining, Dr. Howard's specific offers quick relief. It is an invaluable boon to all who feel uncomfortable after eating, and is today the popular dinner pill in all the large cities. Meyer Bros. Co., Four Drug Stores. 4-18

PLAYGROUND DIRECTOR HERE.

Already Mapping Plans for an Active Season.

W. Dale Borror, recently appointed director of the Fort Wayne playgrounds, arrived in the city Wednesday night from Columbus, O., where last year he successfully managed the Mound Center recreation and industrial school for boys and girls. Mr. Borror is already mapping out plans for the season's work here and early next week will begin the task of instructing his assistants in the line of work which he intends to follow.

A meeting was held last evening at the home of Mrs. Samuel Taylor. A number of officials of the playgrounds association were present and discussed matters of importance pertaining to the welfare of the organization. Another meeting will be held this evening at which more definite plans for the year's work will be outlined.

First Woman Bureau Chief.

MISS JULIA LATHROP.

Chicago, April 18.—Miss Julia Lathrop, who has been appointed as head of Uncle Sam's newly established children's bureau, has done things in Illinois.

Miss Lathrop has been a power in that branch of Illinois politics that has to do with poorhouses and insane asylums. She began by sleeping and eating in the company of paupers and the insane; she ended by cleaning the Augean Stable of Illinois Charities.

She became a member of the state board of charities, resigned because they tried to play politics in her department, stirred up a newspaper war against inhumanity in the treatment of defectives, and finally went back on the board victorious.

Moose Enjoy Feast and Discuss Recent Minstrels.

Performers who assisted with the Moose minstrels given last week at the Majestic theater were guests of honor at a banquet served last evening at the Wayne hotel by the local lodge of Moose, in appreciation for the efforts and time spent in staging the elaborate production which added considerably to the treasury of the fraternity. A sumptuous menu of eight courses was the principal attraction and during the feasting toasts of different nature were offered in informal manner. Professor Gerber, who directed the minstrels, was toastmaster. Following the banquet the guests went to the Moose hall in the Lau block, where a dance was enjoyed.
